DIES IN PAWTUCKET

Donor of Essay Medal To Be Buried Here This Afternoon.

Miss Helen Grey, former Atlantan and donor of the Helen Grey essay medal of the Atlanta chapter, United States of America, died at her home in Pawtucket, R. I., Saturday at 3 o'clock this afternoon in West View cemetery with members of the U. D. C. in attendance, under the leadership of Mrs. Forrest Kibler, president.

Miss Grey is survived by a sister, Mrs. Minnie Bowen, and a niece, Adrietta, both of Santa Barbara, Cal., and a nephew, William E. Bowen, of San Francisco.

The medal is awarded annually to the Fulton county student writing the best essay on a southern subject selected by the chapter. It is perpetuated by a trust fund. The medal last was awarded Emily West, Murphy Junior High school student, for her essay on J. E. B. Stuart in competition with 11,960 students.

LA FOLLETTE DUE IN ATLANTA TODAY

Senator To Speak in Milledgeville This Afternoon, Here Tomorrow Night.

United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, who speaks here tomorrow night, will arrive this morning for a short visit on his way to Milledgeville, where he will address the students of the Georgia State Women's College. Senator La Follette is coming from Greensboro, North Carolina.

The senator will arrive early this morning and remain here until noon visiting friends who will drive him to Milledgeville for his speech there. He will return to Atlanta tonight.

The La Follette address tomorrow night will be in the auditorium of the Wesley Memorial church. The senator's subject will be "New Views on the Washington Scene; Current Economic Problems."

The meeting tomorrow night is under the auspices of the Atlanta Life Underwriters Association. Oliver Nix, president of the association, will preside, and Robert L. Cooney, chairman of the executive committee, will introduce Senator La Follette.

MINE PEACE PARLEYS COLLAPSE IN ALABAMA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 2.—(AP) Efforts to end the strike of 20,000 Alabama coal miners "blew up" abruptly here today with the announcement that negotiations between the mine operators and the United Mine Workers of America had been terminated.

Although there have been no disorders in the 10 days since the walkout, a dozen deputies sheriff were rushed to the Red Diamond Coal Company's mines today to "protect life and property."

They may grow tall corn out west, but Troup county, Georgia, produces some tall sugar cane, as the above picture shows. The stalks, held by Miss Maxine Smith, left, and Miss Georgia Head, were prize winners at the Troup county fair being held at LaGrange this week. The cane is not only peeled and "chewed," but much syrup is also made from its juice on farms in middle and south Georgia. The fair is sponsored by the American Legion. Snelson Davis photo.

OGLETHORPE EXTENSION CLASSES START TODAY

The first Oglethorpe University adult education extension classes begin this afternoon at Commercial High school building. The largest enrollment is found in curriculum study.

The university will start its yearly broadcast of studies over WJTL Monday, with German being offered at 8 o'clock on Mondays and Spanish lessons at 8 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. History and appreciation of music will be offered at 8 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

The Saturday campus classes for adults will begin Saturday, with a variety of courses.

COURT DECISIONS

COURT OF APPEALS OF GEORGIA.

Judgment Affirmed.

Jackey et al. vs. Arnold, administrator; from Wilkes superior court—Judge Perryman, W. A. Staton, for plaintiffs in error.

Judgment Reversed.

American National Insurance Company vs. Chappell; from Atlanta municipal court—Judge McClelland, Tye, Thomson & Tye, R. A. Edmondson Jr., for plaintiff in error.

FAIR WEATHER AIDS
FARMERS OF GEORGIA

The shadow of crop-damaging rain clouds moved off south Georgia this week for the first time in over a month while a drought in north Georgia was in its third week.

For the first time in a month cotton and corn had weather favorable for ripening and harvesting over the entire state, the United States Weather Bureau reported in Atlanta yesterday.

Cotton was reported open in most of the state and picking was reported 90 per cent completed northward to Augusta.

In one north Georgia county—Whitfield—ground was reported too hard to plow. Vegetables were suffering from lack of rain since early September.

In south Georgia, from Valdosta eastward, much land has been seeded to oats.

VALIDATION OF BONDS SOUGHT IN CARROLL

CARROLLTON, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP) Issues raised by bond validating proceedings of three Carroll county school districts are scheduled to be heard at the courthouse here next Monday before Judge Lee B. Wyatt, of Coweta circuit superior court.

The districts seeking validation of bonds for building and equipping school plants are Kansas, Stripling Chapel and Flat Rock.

A bond election for school improvements at Midway was held yesterday and validation proceedings for this district are also expected to be heard soon.

SINGING CONVENTION TO MEET AT PALMETTO

PALMETTO, Ga., Oct. 2.—The old Campbell county singing convention will hold the last meeting for 1935 next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the Hope Methodist church, five miles west of Palmetto.

James H. Longino, prominent banker of Fairburn, states he will bring his bride of 57 years ago, who was married in this little church in their youth together, to attend the singing.

Many prominent singers and music lovers from Atlanta will attend. Thomas B. Harper, of Palmetto, is president of the convention.

ATTENDANCE RECORD SEEN FOR UNIVERSITY

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Registrar T. W. Reed announced today that the University of Georgia registration for the new term to date was 2,854 students.

When graduate students, yet to enter, are registered, Reed said the institution would have the largest enrollment in its history. The peak enrollment of the 1934-35 session was 2,675. Dan Bowden, of Atlanta, has been named cadet colonel of the Georgia R. O. T. C. unit. Colonel H. H. Mena, the commandant, has announced.

STATE DEATHS

H. E. HAYS.—Funeral services for H. E. Hays, who died at his residence here this morning, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Zion Hill Baptist church, near Buford, with Rev. H. C. Whitner officiating, and Glendon P. Tapp, funeral director, in charge.

Mr. Hays is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Cora Cheek, of Anderson, S. C.; two sons, E. C. Hays, of Newbern, N. C., and J. P. Hays, of Buford; one brother, William Hays, of Athens.

MRS. FRANCES SAINTE.—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Frances Sainte, 72, who died at her home near Clermont yesterday.

Surviving are a son, C. F. Sainte, of Gainesville, and two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Grizzle and Mrs. C. E. Ward, of Clermont.

Big Attendance Seen at Southern Convention at Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The arrival tonight of newspaper circulation managers from eight states presaged a heavy registration for the Southern Circulation Managers' Association convention which opens here tomorrow.

The executive committee held a luncheon meeting here today under direction of J. Larry Barksdale, president of the association and circulation manager of the Miami Herald. The convention program was outlined by E. D. Hood, circulation manager of the Savannah Morning News and Evening Press.

PICTURES TO ENLIVEN PRESTONE MEETING

National Carbon Company
Invites Auto Dealers and Employees to Program.

A full-length talking motion picture feature, "Liquid Assets," and a short newsreel type of picture, door prizes and refreshments, will enliven the Eveready Prestone meeting at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. All automobile dealers and their employees are invited as guests of National Carbon Company and one of the largest gatherings of its kind is expected to see National Carbon Company specialists illustrate the latest methods of protecting automobile cooling systems.

The feature picture will be, in effect, a new venture in presenting a modern engineering problem in the most modern screen form. Neil O'Day, star of Joe Cook's "Fine and Dandy," before she began her motion picture career, and Don Dillaway, of "Wings," "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," and other successes are the principals in the picture, supported by a large cast. One of the episodes gives the audience an airplane flight over, as well as factory close-ups inside, the huge Eveready Prestone plant at South Charleston, W. Va., where the millions of gallons of Eveready Prestone are made.

Prospects of the best Prestone year in the history of the product are seen by District Manager C. O. Kleinsmith, in charge of National Carbon sales in this area. The whole technique of high temperature engines is now convincing the public, he believes, that only a permanent noncorroding anti-rust can properly protect a car in winter. The whole technique of safeguarding the 1935-36 motorist against the winter sea-saw of warm-then-cold weather will be discussed at tonight's meeting.

Open discussion of specific problems of dealers will follow the formal meeting.

$800,000 GIVEN AWAY

Texas Farmer-Philanthropist
Dies at 91.

McKINNEY, Texas, Oct. 2.—(AP)—"Uncle Gus" Wilson, a farmer who amassed $800,000 during 91 years and gave it all away, was buried today in a remnant of his own land and holdings, the family burial plot.

Collins county folk knew A. M. Wilson as "the philanthropist in overalls." He lived in a little log cabin from the time he came here 36 years ago with his parents from Kentucky. He worked hard. He had frugal habits.

Even in death he would not impose upon friends. His coffin and tombstone had been selected and paid for 10 years ago. The undertaker had been paid in full.

Text of Address by Roosevelt Stressing U. S. Policy of Peace

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The text of the address delivered today by President Roosevelt follows:

It is 20 long years since I stood here in company with Vice President Marshall when the first exposition was held here in San Diego. At that time the flames of a World War were spreading and two years later we ourselves were to take part in the great catastrophe of mankind. In the days that followed the coming of peace, our nation passed through a period of deflation into a decade of self-deceiving prosperity which we accepted unthinkingly in our desire for quietude, peace and luxury. The inevitable overtook us and during more than three years of increasing hardship we can only hope that the ultimate national need for more than the necessities and pleasures of life; that which is spiritual in us came forward and taught us that peace of mind, that confidence in the future, that deep contentment which make life not only possible but full and complete.

Great adversity has chastened us; in the process of recovery we have well-nigh unanimous agreement in requiring the elimination of many of those evils which have beset us without which elimination true confidence cannot be made permanent.

RETURN OF CONFIDENCE UNSTAKABLY CERTAIN

I see signs unmistakable signs—of the restoration of this sound and genuine confidence—a confidence of the masses of the people in the integrity and fairness of government, a confidence that integrity and fairness in private enterprise will take the place of many of the evils of the past—in other words, the only confidence on which we can permanently build.

Expositions such as this can and do well express our hope of the future. Not only is the setting perfect, but the extent and the diversity of the products of American artistic and mechanical genius gathered here speak eloquently of what this nation can attain on a broad scale.

To a great extent, the achievements of invention, of mechanical and of artistic creation, must of necessity be individual rather than governmental. It is the self-reliant pioneer in every enterprise who beats the path along which American civilization has marched. Such individual effort is the glory of America.

The task of government is that of application and encouragement. A wise government seeks to provide the opportunity through which the best of individual achievement can be obtained, while at the same time it seeks to remove such obstruction, such unfairness as springs from selfish human motives. Our common life under our various agencies of government, our laws and our basic constitution, exist primarily to protect the individual, to cherish his rights and to make clear his just principles.

REFORMS ATTEMPTED IN MONETARY SYSTEM

It is this conception of service to the individual with which the federal government has concerned itself these two and a half years just passed. When I took the oath of office there were evidences on all sides that the United States did not then possess a sound and just monetary system. The forces of deflation had finally resulted in the almost complete collapse of our economic activities; the banking system had fallen down; prices of commodities were ruinously low; the burden of debt, individual and collective, was more than the nation could bear. The farmer, worker and businessman were helpless in the grip of circumstance.

We were confronted by a choice of two days of meeting the situation. We could let nature take its course until the process of deflation was complete, and then take the long gamble of building on the ruins. Such a course was driving up to irreparable damage to our national life.

We chose the alternate course. We sought in every sound and legitimate way to raise values, particularly the purchasing power of that agricultural half of the nation without which factory wheels could not turn. We changed a gold standard that had become, not the assurance of a sound economic life, but a strait-jacket which pressed upon and paralyzed the nerve centers of our economic system. Through the extension of sound government credit we reduced the burden of private debt.

We rehabilitated the banking system and finally we financed the outlays necessary for the encouragement of recovery, not through an increase in the burden of taxation upon the average citizen, but by adding to the public debt, frankly and honestly.

BANK DEPOSITS SHOW HUGE GAINS

As a result of all these efforts, bank deposits in active commercial banks have increased by $10,000,000,000 or more than 30 percent. At this time the deposits in the banks of the nation amount to more than $50,000,000,000, which, I submit, compares favorably with the $25,000,000,000 in June 1929. Unlike that year, however, the new system of deposit insurance covers 98 percent of the 50,000,000 individual depositors in these insured banks and gives them full protection under the provisions of law.

So, too, the credit policy of the Federal Reserve System in the past two years has sought and accomplished a reduction of interest rates for the purpose of stimulating business recovery. As a result sound business institutions can secure money on bonds at a rate of 3.34 percent instead of 4.34 percent. Government bonds on which the taxpayers formerly paid 3.1-2 percent or more are now sold with an interest rate of 2.1-2 percent. Through important amendments to our banking laws, we have given practical recognition to the fact that monetary policies are a national public concern and not a regional or private concern. The federal government is in a better position than it ever has been to prevent that disastrous expansion and contraction of credit which in the past has made our economic life a succession of unhealthy booms and disastrous depressions.

SITUATION EXISTENT IN SPRING OF 1933.

In the midst of the greatest and most disastrous of these depressions, the very foundation of individual life was crumbling in the spring of 1933 because of the appalling increase in suffering and destitution due to the fact of unemployment. Local and state governments and private charities were, in the large, drained of their resources. With the utmost good will in the world they could not meet their primary responsibility. The situation which I faced was a challenge to the government to permit of hesitation. An American government cannot permit Americans to starve.

The task assumed in federal relief carried us on an uncharted course. Mistakes and errors were inevitable—that we know—but essentially we met the larger responsibilities of the situation. The time demanded action as a substitute for inaction.

In the first emergency action we provided direct relief because a human situation confronted us, but as rapidly as we could, recognizing the moral and spiritual fibre of the American people should not be shaped by the narcotic of idleness, we undertook to substitute work for a dole.

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK; OLD ORDER CHANGING.

Today, the outlook is clearer, and even though we have not found final solution for many of the by-products of depression, some old and some new, as they affect unemployment, nevertheless it is not the spirit of America to shrink before a plain necessity. As the burden lifts, the federal government can and will greatly direct itself to its emergency responsibility but, at the same time, it cannot ignore the imperfections of the old order.

In the same broad field a changing civilization has raised new problems with respect to the relationship between the employer and the employed. It is a fundamentally individual right of a worker to associate himself with other workers and to bargain collectively with his employer. New laws do not pretend to prevent labor disputes, nor do they cover all industry and all labor. But they do constitute an important step toward the achievement of a more peaceful labor relations in industry. This right of the federal government is well established. Every President in this generation has been faced by the fact that when labor relations are strained to the breaking point there remains but one high road to reconciliation—the government of the United States.

GOVERNMENT WITHIN INDUSTRY

In like manner we have sought to foster human co-operation within industry itself. Through the institution of codes within industries we sought to establish a rule of constitutional government within industry in substitution for the rule of tooth and claw. The experience thus gained by business in co-operative methods marks a permanent advance. I have talked with hundreds of businessmen and an overwhelming proportion of them tell me frankly that unless they can unite for the elimination of unfair and destructive practices, naught but chaos and insecurity can be expected. These principles, so widely accepted under the National Industrial Recovery Act, still live and means for their application I trust can be found.

We stand once more upon an economic plateau. We have, therefore, a right to look forward to the brighter future while, at the same time, we remember the mistakes of the past.

Simple facts speak so eloquently that explanation is unnecessary. From March, 1933, through June, 1935, the following gains have been recorded in the industrial and business life of America. Industrial production increased 45 percent; factory employment 35 percent; rural general sales 104 percent; automobile sales 157 percent; life insurance written 41 percent; electric power production 18 percent; this last being, incidentally, a higher mark than in any other time in our history.

"MALICE DOMESTIC, FIERCE FOREIGN WAR"

Centuries ago the greatest writer in our history described the two most menacing clouds that hang over human government and human society as "malice, domestic and fierce foreign war." We are not rid of these dangers but we can summon the intelligence to meet them.

Never was there more genuine reason for Americans to face down these two causes of fear, "malice domestic" from time to time will come to us in the shape of those who would raise false issues, pervert facts, preach the gospel of hate, and minimize the importance of public action to secure human rights or spiritual ideals. There are those today who would sow these seeds, but your answer to them is in the possession of the plain facts of our present condition.

The second cloud—"foreign war"—is more real—a more potent danger at this moment to the future of civilization. It is not surprising that many of our citizens feel a deep sense of apprehension lest some of the nations of the world repeat the folly of 20 years ago and drag civilization to a level from which world-wide recovery may be all but impossible.

In the face of this apprehension the American people can have but one concern and speak but one sentiment; despite what happens upon continents overseas, the United States of America shall and must remain, as long as the father of our country prayed that it might remain—unentangled and free.

PEACE DESIRE OF UNITED STATES

This country seeks no conquest. We have no imperial designs. From day to day and year to year, we are establishing a more perfect assurance of peace with our neighbors. We rejoice especially in the prosperity, the stability and the independence of all of the American republics. We not only earnestly desire peace, but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world.

Our national determination to keep free of foreign wars and foreign entanglements cannot prevent us from feeling deep concern when ideals and principles that we have cherished are challenged.

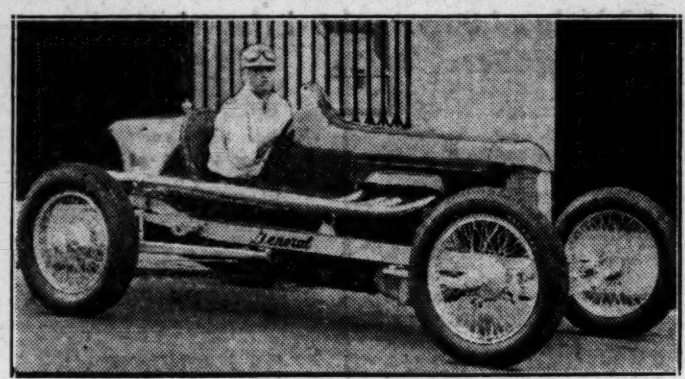

In the United States we regard it as axiomatic that no person shall enjoy the free exercise of his religion according to the dictates of his conscience. Our flag for a century and a half has been the symbol of the primary of liberty of conscience, of religious freedom and equality before the law; and these concepts are deeply ingrained in our national character.

FREEDOM OF PRINCIPLE AMERICAN HERITAGE

It is true that other nations may, as they do, enforce contrary rules of conscience and conduct. It is true that policies that may be pursued under flags other than our own are beyond our jurisdiction. Yet in our inner individual lives we can never be indifferent, and we assert for ourselves complete freedom to exercise, to profess and to observe the principles for which our flag has so long been the lofty symbol. As it was so well said by James Madison, "We hold it for a fundamental and inalienable truth that religion and the manner of discharging it can be directed only by reason and conviction, not by force or violence."

I say to you most earnestly once more that the people of America and the government of those people intend and expect to remain at peace with all the world. In the two years and a half of my presidency, this government has remained constant in following this policy of our own choice. At home we have preached, and will continue to preach, the gospel of the good neighbor. I hope from the bottom of my heart that as the years go on, in every continent and in every clime, nation will follow nation in proving to the world that as by word their adherence to the ideal of the Americas—I am a good neighbor.

Atlanta Car Won Southern Championship

This racer built by Bill Milam, employee of Brown Tire Company, won the southern championship at the Southeastern Fair auto races on Sunday. It was driven by Red Redmond, seen at the wheel. He also ended fifth in the feature event behind the national champion, "Wild Bill" Cummings. Redmond says he was highly pleased with the way his General tires held on the curves.

ATLANTA CHILD'S RITES TO BE HELD IN MIAMI

Funeral services for Julia Robert, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Robert Jr., who was killed in a Miami (Fla.) automobile accident Tuesday, will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Miami, relatives here were notified last night. The services will be conducted at Carter's Funeral Home, Miami.

Messages from Robert, an engineer on leave of absence from Robert & Co. here, indicated that Mrs. Robert and her son, Harry C. Robert III, who were slightly injured in the same accident, were recovering.

The Roberts were en route from Fort Myers, where Robert has been on a city contract, to Atlanta when the accident occurred.

BODY OF HINDENBURG IN NEW RESTING PLACE

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The body of former President Paul von Hindenburg was transferred today from a side tower of the Tannenberg memorial in East Prussia to a permanent resting place in the main tower of the great structure erected to commemorate the field marshal's most famous victory.

The ceremony was carried out with great military pomp in the absence of Reichsmarschall Hitler, while the day—von Hindenburg's birth anniversary—was celebrated throughout the nation.

ROOSEVELT PROMISES NEUTRALITY BY U. S.

45 per cent; factory employment 35 per cent; rural general store sales 104 per cent; automobile sales 157 per cent; electrical power production 18 per cent while bank deposits in active commercial banks have increased more than 30 per cent.

These things, he added, have been achieved "not through an increase in the burden of taxation upon the average citizen, but by adding to the public debt, frankly and honestly."

NAVY BATTLES FOR ROOSEVELT

A BOARD DESTROYER BROOM, OFF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt went to sea tonight aboard the heavy cruiser Houston in the role of the commander of an enemy fleet.

He really started on a fishing cruise, but the navy wanted to show him something no American President ever before witnessed—how the navy fights.

One hundred and thirty fighting ships came to his battle.

The heavyweight title for newly born babies is claimed for an infant born at a private hospital at Cremona, a Sydney, Australia, suburb. It weighed 16 pounds at birth.

City Assumes All Responsibility For Handling Roosevelt Crowds

Mayor Key Tells Chairman Cocke He Will Borrow Police From Other Cities If Needed To Direct More Than 100,000 Visitors Expected.

The city of Atlanta yesterday was crowded any of us have ever seen anywhere. We will have upward of 200 policemen on duty and if that is not enough I am sure the chiefs of other cities will loan us any men they may have available. It looks like nearly everyone in Macon, Savannah, Augusta and Columbus will be here, anyhow. They can bring the policemen, too. The policemen will welcome the opportunity to join in honoring the President and at the same time be of service to him and to the people of the state.

Mr. Cocke said yesterday he had received information that large delegations were coming here from neighboring states for the celebration. "Of course the President is going to visit Georgia but there will be folks here from Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina," he said. "Various people have estimated we will have 100,000 or more. I have no way of telling how many will be here but everything points to a record crowd."

Another city gave formal notice of a public holiday yesterday when Mayor Ed Johnson, of Blue Ridge, issued a proclamation calling on all citizens of his city and Fannin county to come to Atlanta.

It also was announced yesterday that the city of Nichols in Coffee county would have a motorcade here for the celebration. Douglas, the county seat, and Broxton, also are expected to send delegations.

ALLEN TO TRY HIS HAND

There is little in the record of Governor O. K. Allen to indicate that he has either the ability or the courage to fill the political shoes of Huey Long. He is likely to find that in placing Long's mantle on his shoulders, the followers of the former dictator have made him more of a goat than a boss.

Under the Long regime, Allen was never more than a rubber stamp, taking his orders from the man who put him in office and doing nothing except what he was told to do.

It is not reasonable to expect that such a man will develop overnight into the virile and courageous leader necessary to keep the already divided Long forces as a compact political unit.

For the time being a halfway sort of truce has been patched up among the Long leaders in the scramble for the choice posts to be filled in the primary to be held next January, but the bonds uniting them must be strengthened before the heat of the campaign if the organization is not to split wide open.

Certainly Allen gives little promise of ability to weld the bonds that will bind the disgruntled leaders more securely to the machine created by Long.

In the meantime, the Rev. Gerald K. Smith, organizer for the share-the-wealth clubs, is earnestly assuring the members of the clubs that the movement will go on. The cheering words of Rev. Mr. Smith may serve to keep his own spirits up, but they will scarcely suffice to bring life into a movement that at best was a mushroom growth and is undoubtedly destined to soon become a memory.

If the sane and sensible people of Louisiana will get together in a united effort to re-create popular government, the era of political travesty from which the state has suffered can be brought to an early end. Unless such united opposition to the Long machine is presented, it is possible that even under such weak leadership as that to be expected from Governor Allen the cohorts of the late dictator may be able to continue themselves in control of the state government for a time.

But if the best they can do for a leader is so weak and spineless a man as Governor Allen, then their overthrow sooner or later is inevitable.

CONTRAST IN METHODS

The other night young James P. Donahue stuck his head out of a hotel window in Rome and shouted "Viva Ethiopia!" In less than five minutes officers were pounding on the door of his room, and as quickly as he could pack his belongings and pay his bill he was escorted to the railway station, told to get out of Italy and stay out.

Young Mr. Donahue, who is 19, and another heir of the Woolworth millions, was reported to be having cocktails with his cousin, Countess Barbara Hutton Midway Haultguit-Reventlow, and her last husband, the count. He may have had one cocktail too many, or it may have been just his boyish exuberance that caused him to shout "Viva Ethiopia!" It is very doubtful that he was at all serious, but European dictators and officials have no doubts regarding such matters; the mildest remark that may be construed as derogatory to an official or the system of governments means prison or immediate deportation.

Contrast that system with our own, as exemplified in the case of an alien named Kapura, who two weeks ago finished a sentence at the Atlanta federal penitentiary. He posted a bond to guarantee his appearance when wanted again, but as he boarded a train for New York he told an officer: "Where I'll be then is none of your business."

A federal officer branded Kapura as a dangerous alien criminal, the kind we should deport, but added that we had to secure permission from his country in order to do so. Aliens who flout our laws and conspire openly to overthrow our form of government should be handled with more of the prompt firmness that is met by over-enthusiastic Americans in foreign countries.

BOEHM HEADS CHEST DRIVE

The selection of Julian Boehm as chairman of the Community Chest campaign assures that the drive to raise the fund necessary for the support of the various institutions under the Chest will be skillfully and diligently conducted.

One of Atlanta's best-known business leaders, Mr. Boehm has evidenced for many years an earnest interest in the welfare of the community. He has labored day in and day out for such humanitarian undertakings as the Scottish Rite hospital, the Good Samaritan clinic, Camp Civitania, and organizations dedicated to the alleviation of suffering and the aid of the unfortunate.

Probably no man in Atlanta is more intimately acquainted with the requirements of a successful drive to raise funds for the support of the Community Chest. In the past, Mr. Boehm has been among the most indefatigable and successful workers in putting each annual drive "over the top."

It is fortunate that the Chest is able to call on such a man to head the drive for funds this fall. With the withdrawal of the federal government from direct relief activities, the demands upon the Community Chest will be greater, in all probability, than they have ever been before.

In order that the necessary fund can be raised, the need of each institution supported by the Chest must be forcefully and eloquently presented, and the drive conducted in a systematic and businesslike manner.

It is assured that under the leadership of Julian Boehm the Chest will again make a successful appeal to the people of the city to furnish the money necessary to bear suffering and dependency among the unfortunate of the community.

SPURNING THE DOLE

One of the most remarkable stories of indefatigable will and boundless energy to arise out of the depression era comes from Arkansas, where Mayor Melhorn, of Parkin, relates the story of a determined mother, with an invalid husband, who took $2.60 worth of seed and a quarter acre of land and kept her family of seven during the entire summer.

With her husband and father—the only menfolk in the family—too feeble to render aid, this stout-hearted woman and her four small children raised 70 bushels of beans, 20 bushels of cucumbers, 15 quarts of peas, 5 quarts of carrots, 11 bushels of potatoes and four bushels of onions, besides enough other vegetables to fill 180 cans for use during the winter months.

Not only were enough vegetables to feed the family produced, but the surplus was sold for sufficient to buy groceries—and some pigs, which will soon be killed and cooked into the smokehouse.

In the record of this Arkansas family is to be found the spirit that has made America great—the spirit that, whatever the obstacles faced, never gives thought to the possibility of defeat.

The fact that only a few dollars and a tiny plot of land were sufficient to keep this little family off the dole—happy and high spirited in their independence—emphasizes the buffeting of adversity—emphasizes the folly of such scatter-brain projects at the Matanuska colonization scheme, where it is estimated from $50,000 to $100,000 will eventually be spent on each family permanently established on a self-supporting basis.

The millions that have been, and will be, poured into the bleak Alaskan valley would have brought independence to thousands of southern farm families and renewed prosperity to agricultural communities now dotted with idle farms.

Cotton is being used as an experimental surfacing on Mississippi roads. It is expected to facilitate the annual tearing up of the pavement.

The titles usual in armies are to be introduced in the soviet forces, as it embarrasses the self-respecting private to have to call a general "Pal."

They say garters are returning to the college campuses. If the nation can't lift itself by the bootstraps, this may be the next best thing.

A Hollywood idol is laid up following an attack by a lion. Attendants beat off the wild creature before it could get the autograph.

If non-title prize fights are drawing a million at the gate, maybe the administration's key mistake was not organizing a brawn trust.

Why Not Be a Judge?

Any man of importance can be a judge in Abyssinia and may be called upon any moment to render judgment. No need to go to court. If two tribesmen have a dispute, they accost the first citizen they meet and compel him to settle their difference. The simplest trial lasts a whole day, opens at sunset and ends with the coming of night. Lawyers are not always called upon to fire off their eloquence. Every Abyssinian is a born orator.

The sessions of the courts are held anywhere, in the middle of the street preferably. The more spectators, the better the litigants and judges like it. Question of prestige! Women plead their own causes, as well as men. Some of them frighten the judges with their vehemence. "If you don't give me justice, my man," they tell him, "I will denounce you to the empress. I know a thing or two about your private life." The empress, it should be said, prides herself on being called "the defender of the weaker sex."

I heard a case being thrashed out today in which a man had called in the money he had loaned to a neighbor. The sum borrowed amounted to two thalers. For two thalers you pay a monthly interest of six thalers. Blessed those who have, especially in Ethiopia, for to them is given!

Court Session.

Here comes a chief or an under-chief. He is on the way to the Governor's palace to make a report or pay a courtesy call. He is accompanied by a suite of followers. He himself rides on a mule, but his followers carry a barefooted. Every jackman carries a rifle over his shoulder. They throw up a cloud of dust as they pass. All at once there is a shout: "Dagna, Dagna!"

Two litigants have seen the dignitary and they call upon him to sit down and settle their dispute. He demurs. He has important business to attend at the palace. He proposes one of his aids to act as judge. After interminable haggling the disputants accept the compromise. The dignitary is allowed to continue on his way.

The arguments start at once. Each party arms himself with a long stick and waves it in the air as he talks. This is the "staff of justice." Sometimes it looks as if they are going to belabor each other as they are carried away by the wrath and the exuberance of their own words. But then there is a murmur of disapproval and the warring parties calm down. One blow, and the whole affair would have been settled to the disadvantage of the one who had struck. That is the unwritten law of this land. It's a good law, I imagine, but it encourages a man to excite his opponent to such anger that he does strike out.

Good Interest Rates.

The trial I witnessed ended up with the borrower being condemned to be chained up, which meant that he was promptly fastened to his creditor with a chain. The two of them remain chained together till the money owing is paid up. You see pairs of men chained together all over Abyssinia. To find out who is the criminal undergoing punishment, you just ask the creditor. He is chained. That's the right law.

The World War 20 Years Ago Today.
October 3, 1915—First Lieutenant J. Errol Boyd, of the British air corps, was shot down from 12,000 feet by a German anti-aircraft gun, and lived to tell the tale.

(This is the same Errol Boyd, of Toronto, whose transatlantic aviation exploits were to be heard of later.)

As he told the story:
"Three of us set out with orders to let go a few U. S. 1's on some hangars and supply sheds. The German had at Zebrugg, some 40 miles up the coast from our station at Dunkirk. Each of us had six 75-pound bombs under the body of our machine. We had a dozen, or 20, little hand bombs, five or six pounds."

"We got away in the dark, about 4 a. m., and back of our own lines climbed till we were 10,000 feet up. There we headed up the coast and got over the town of Zebrugg just as daylight was appearing. We located the sheds we wanted, and after the three of us let go our levers, the old bomb got whizzing down for nearly two miles, and then wheel around and back to what she'd do when she hits."

"I heard it a roundabout way afterward that one of my bombs killed 14 men. The German shell hit him three cylinders were torn away from his engine. His wings were pierced in five places. His machine looped the loop 10 times, the way down, it finally landed, right side up, with the Canadian unhurt, 50 yards inside of Dutch territory. Dutch frontier guards had to 'zang' Boyd to over-power and intern him."

That dry air is lighter than ordinary moist air.
Actually, it is heavier.

That "mug" is modern slang.
It isn't. Mugs are known as mugs because in early days they were made in shape of faces.

That the older whiskey, wine, brandy or any alcoholic potable is the better.
This is a true. It may improve up to a certain age and it may not. But the finest distillations and vinegars deteriorate after a particular period.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

REVERSION PALO ALTO, Cal.

Mr. Hoover is not a candidate and will not be one. What he is, and will be in 36, is a political and economic leader, an influential one.

His friends say he has retired, but, of course, he has not. Even he may assume that he has retired, but it is physically impossible for a man of his temperament to do so. At least not in the sense that Calvin Coolidge sat down on his Northampton porch, ordered some good cigars and with his feet on the rail, watched the world go past.

What has happened to Mr. Hoover is that he has become again the man he was as secretary of commerce, when, unworried and alert, he knew practically everything of importance that was going on, or likely to go on, in the world.

VIEW The ex-President's personal outlook cannot be known officially. Wisely, he gives no publishable interviews. But he talks freely with many friends and they give the view from his study window toward the world of politics is substantially this.

For 23 years, before he left the White House, he never had been out of a pressing administrative or executive job. He carried his troubles to bed with him and arose to face them again in the morning. Now, for the first time in his life, he has no troubles. He can go fishing whenever he wants to, and he can play.

The White House to him is a house haunted with troubles and man-killing responsibilities. No man of his position, in his right mind, would ever want to give up the enjoyment of life and return to them. Vindication might be sweet, but life is sweeter.

HOBBY The secret of Mr. Hoover which the country does not understand is the type of playing he has chosen to enjoy. He fore he entered the White House, he had one hobby. He amused himself by trying to find out everything that was going on in economics, finance and business.

As secretary of commerce he was the best news source in Washington. He could tell you on what development was likely to occur next in Russia, in the coal strike, in Wall Street. He had lines out everywhere, personal contacts extending beyond those of any other man in the country. His home and office were open forums for people who knew what was going on. When he entered the White House, he changed all that. The responsibilities of immediate duties closed up the old avenues.

These have been reopened. Today Mr. Hoover is again one of the best informed men in the country. He knows what is going on nearly everywhere. And he has added politics to the subjects in which he is interested.

RUMORS There probably are more erroneous stories going around the country about Mr. Hoover than about President Roosevelt. The latest is that he has set up a gigantic political organization, secretly, and, when the right time comes, he will emerge as the next republican standard bearer. Nothing could be sillier.

Anyone traveling across the country, talking with republican and democratic leaders, will find to find any evidence of a Hoover political organization. There is none. Even Mr. Hoover's best friends are talking of other candidates. He has contacts, but not aggressive personal support.

Furthermore, Mr. Hoover is one of the worst politicians who ever sat in the White House. He never ran for a public office, except the presidency. Essentially, politics is not his game.

STUDY To get the background of the Palo Altoan, you have to get a glimpse of his study. It has wide windows like a show-case, looking out over the Stanford campus and at the Brown Mountain ridge beyond, the peak of which is Mt. Diablo (The Devil). Strangely enough, it bears a resemblance to Mr. Roosevelt. There is a large stone fireplace into which Mr. Hoover casts cigar stubs. His desk is clean. No letters lie around from day to day. The incoming mail is large. Farmers and other people who do not know him write of their experiences and troubles.

Prominent businessmen and politicians communicate with him also and always look him up when on the coast. They are served orange juice and a cigar. They find him looking ten years younger than when he left the White House, warmer, more friendly, smiling, and, believe it or not, taking a humorous view of some situations.

Of these visitors, and, in fact, no living person here or elsewhere has been told what he intends to do in the next campaign. But if he has anything in his sleeve, it certainly does not rattle.

SILHOUETTES

It doesn't matter what I write
Or talk about today;
My efforts all are wasted, quite,
World Series gets the play.

For no one reads and no one cares
For aught beneath the sun,
Save how each diamond hero fares,
Save how the game was won.

Greatest Finish
Crackers Ever Knew.

It was in 1913 the Crackers won the Southern league pennant by a half-game margin from Mobile. That was the year I developed greater baseball fanaticism than in any other of my life.

Opening the final series of the season, Mobile was three full games ahead of the Crackers. Mobile came to Ponce de Leon for the four-game series.

The Crackers won the first game, cutting the lead to two games. They won the second, cutting it to one game.

Third Game Tied
By an Error.

In the third game Mobile came to bat in the ninth inning two runs behind. Two men went out. The batter had two strikes on him when he hit an easy grounder to third baseman, Joe Adler, the Cracker first baseman, overly anxious to show with both hands, altogether contrary to his customary habit, and—dropped the ball. Before Mobile was retired two runs were across and the game ended a few innings later, a tie.

Two Teams Tied

For League Lead.

Next day a double-header was announced. Game to start at 1 o'clock. Game to be called at 4:30 o'clock. Mobile, playing next day in New Orleans, could catch a train.

Both Mobile and the Crackers won their Saturday games and, in so far as Atlanta was concerned, the season was over. The Crackers had won the league.

But Charlie Frank's Pelicans at New Orleans, with Finis Wilson, 3b; Smith, 2b; Bland, ss; Holland, 3b; Nixon, rf; Dunn and Chapman, c; Thompson, Conzelmann, Price, Dent, Love and Voss, pitchers, and Manush, utility. Billy Smith was manager.

Paid To See

Three Games.

The story I really started to tell, however, was of my own experience during the Atlanta-Mobile series. I was a recent addition to the news staff of The Constitution and was quite overawed by Sid Ormond, then city editor. For the first three games

I had played hooky from the job, sneaking out to the ball park and putting up a good show.

On the Friday of that crucial double-header my conscience worried me and I came to the office at noon determined to stay on the job, forget baseball, and work, if every other living soul in the city went to the game.

And my only assignment for the day was to write the morning fifty plump feature story on the crowd. And help Dick Jenison, the sporting editor, in any way possible. Sid Ormond handed me my only pass of the week.

Twenty-Five

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP.)

Successful treatment of more than 20 cases of cancer, previously given up as hopeless, with the aid of a completely new method, focused the attention of scientists today upon Dr. Henry C. Connell, of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., Canada.

Whether Dr. Connell has discovered the long-sought cure for cancer, only time, with further experiments in the laboratories and hospitals of the world, will tell. If he has, his name will go down in history with the great benefactors of the human race.

At the moment, leading Canadian medical men are convinced he has made a significant contribution to the study of cancer which deserves the closest attention of the world of medicine.

Today's issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, official publication of Canadian medicine, contains a preliminary report by Dr. Connell, the record of 20 cases treated, and an editorial expressing the Journal's confidence in Dr. Connell's scientific ability and emphasizing the importance of his work.

What Dr. Connell has done, according to his report to the Journal, is to create a solution which dissolves away cancer tissue. In a number of the cases treated, the cancerous mass which was hard, grew softer and smaller.

The solution is injected into the patient with a hypodermic needle. Dr. Connell calls it "ensol," which is a contraction of the two words "enzyme solution." Strangely enough, he manufactures the solution with the aid of a germ which is frequently the cause of cancer.

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Connell relates the results of the development of "ensol." He is an eye specialist and went to the study of cancer from the study of cataracts.

In earlier studies, Dr. Connell found that certain enzymes, or active chemical substances occurring in the blood, had the power of destroying the proteins which cause the cloudiness of the lens in cataract.

KING GEORGE CONFERS ON ETHIOPIAN CRISIS

Defense Council Meets After Cabinet Session; Army Call Indicated.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—King George took a direct hand in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis today when he summoned his foreign and war ministers to the palace just before a cabinet session on the subject.

The cabinet, which heard the report of Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, on the situation in Geneva, in an atmosphere of extreme pessimism, continued to treat the responsibility for action in the imperial defense council. Immediately after the cabinet meeting the defense council went into session.

King George conferred at length with Viscount Halifax, minister of war, in whose hands the responsibility for assembling Britain's gigantic land war machine rests. There were indications the machine is being made ready for action.

Reports which were not denied here said army commanders in India are preparing to dispatch troops to Africa in case of the outbreak of war. These presumably would first be concentrated in Aden and British territories rimming Ethiopia on the south at the same time troops in Egypt being drawn in along northern frontiers.

Great stress was placed upon reports of an Italian invasion into Ethiopia. Significance also was attached to the visit to Alexandria of Sir Miles Lampson, British high commissioner in Egypt, for an interview with King Fuad.

BRITISH LABOR BACKS MILITARY SANCTIONS USE

BRIGHTON, England, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The British labor party lined up solidly today in favor of the use of full League of Nations sanctions, even of a military nature, in the event of an Italian aggression in Africa.

By a margin of 20 to 1 the party supported the recent action of the International Trade Union Federation.

The decision of Great Britain's strongest opposition party was taken as press headlines told of the first alleged violation of Ethiopia's frontiers.

There was an uproar in the convention halls as the chairman firmly closed debate which had lasted a day and a half, but prolonged cheering greeted the result of the vote.

The card ballot resulted in 2,165,000 votes for sanctions to 102,000 against. The socialist league cast a bloc of 3,000 votes against the proposition.

The convention tonight rejected resolutions opposing the government's scheme for civilian air raid drills and instructing labor minister governments to refuse to carry them out.

HAILE LAYS INVASION TO IL DUCE'S TROOPS

The council and the states members that Italian troops have violated the Ethiopian frontier in the region south of Mount Mussa Ali, in the province of Aussa, between that mountain and the frontier of Ethiopia and French Somaliland, and have established themselves in Ethiopian territory preparing a base for extensive attack.

"The proximity of the sea to this region and its easy access through the territory of French Somaliland make it possible with the council either to send observers or to obtain confirmation of this violation of Ethiopian territory through the government of French Somaliland."

Italians were reported here to have sent in some 50,000 native Eritrean troops and motor trucks, tanks and airplanes.

Mount Mussa Ali, where the Italians are said to have moved, is 8,000 feet high and commands a great section of the Ethiopian desert. The government here said the Italians have completed six roads from Eritrea to these bases.

mained normal. Many blackshirt employees left their work. The pope agreed to co-operate with Il Duce. Thus in the great "Adunata" or assembly, the bells of St. Peter, like those of every church in Italy, joined in the signals.

Even little San Marino, the smallest and oldest republic in the world, allowed its fascist group to assemble and listen to Il Duce.

Sirens Are Signal.

Rome, like other cities, became one of strange sights when the premier's call came. As the sirens sounded, hundreds of thousands of men and many women walked out of their offices and homes. All knew exactly to what point they should go.

In columns, usually singing the fascist anthem, "Giovinezza," they swung along specified streets to big squares.

Then from some windows women waved and men put out the white and green flags of Italy. An hour later, striding youths in long black columns appeared with huge pictures of Il Duce. Women tossed flowers at them.

The marchers passed through streets lined with old women, men and children. Some were cheering, but usually they remained silent and gave the Roman salute.

The crowd reflected what Mussolini said later: "A solemn hour is about to strike in the history of the nation."

LEAGUE FEARS CRISIS GETTING OUT OF HAND

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The almost simultaneous reports to the League of Nations of mass mobilization in Italy and invasion of Ethiopia by Italian troops today set members anxiously asking each other if the Italo-Ethiopian crisis had already got out of the League's hands.

"Today's war alarms coming after the increased mobilization of the British navy in the Mediterranean created the impression in League circles Europe is really entering into a dangerous predicament."

The council committee of 13 will meet tomorrow to discuss its reports and recommendations for the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian trouble. But the opinion is generally expressed if hostilities begin, it will be virtually useless to present any recommendations.

Meantime an authoritative source disclosed League officials were considering asking the French government to dispatch an airplane from Djibouti, French Somaliland, to Mussa Ali to ascertain whether Italian troops had actually crossed the Ethiopian frontier and reached that point, as alleged by Haile Selassie.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A "flaming crusade by the churches for peace was proposed tonight by Secretary Hull as Italian war drums sounded on Ethiopian borders.

The secretary of state made his suggestion in a speech before a mass meeting held under auspices of the committee on religious life in the nation's capital.

"The church is a sponsor and advocate of peace and at this moment when there is a menace of war that may not be confined to any two nations, but spread among several nations, there is a weighty obligation resting on the church to exert itself in every conceivable manner to impress the people with a hatred of war and a love of peace."

The speech of the secretary, the first official comment by any official after the delivery of the President's speech, was taken by many as another exposition of the administration's desire to keep this country out of any conflict which might arise from the Italian-Ethiopian controversy.

Earlier in the day, Secretary Roper said at a press conference he viewed the United States as a potential arbiter in matters of world concern.

"It is only natural the world should look to us for an unbiased judgment on world affairs—if and when any time comes that such an unbiased judgment as a nation is necessary," Roper said.

GEN. CRAIG IS NAMED NEW CHIEF OF STAFF

ing golf, which friends say is his favorite sport.

Craig came into the army through the West Point route. He graduated in St. Joseph, Mo., on August 5, 1875, and was graduated from the academy into a second lieutenant in 1898.

Immediately afterward he saw service in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, and in June, 1900, participated in the China relief expedition troops necessary by the Boxer outbreak.

After service in various army posts in this country, Craig, upon American entrance into the world war in 1917, was assigned as chief of staff of the 41st division and sailed with that outfit for France.

Later he became chief of staff of the First Army Corps, serving in that position until the armistice was signed. Then he marched into Germany as chief of staff of the Army of Occupation.

Directs War College.

Upon his return to the United States in 1919, Craig served as director of the Army War College during 1920-21 and as commander of the cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kan., in 1921-22.

In 1924 he was promoted to major general and made chief of cavalry for two years, and then assigned as assistant chief of staff for an additional two years.

Since that time he has commanded the fourth corps area at Atlanta; the Panama division; the Panama Canal department; and the ninth corps area at San Francisco, until January of this year when he was assigned as commander of the army war college.

His World War record was described as outstanding. Craig was awarded the distinguished service medal for his "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services" as chief of staff of a division, a corps, and an army in France and Germany. He also received the legion of honor and croix de guerre of France, order of the bath of England, order of the crown of Belgium, and order of the crown of Italy.

Simonds To Hold Post.

Major General George S. Simonds, who frequently was mentioned with Craig as possible successor to MacArthur, will remain as deputy chief of staff.

Four Generations Attend Birthday Party

Four generations were present yesterday as Captain J. E. Chandler, member of the police department for 46 years, celebrated his 81st birthday in his home at 25 Ormond street, S. E. From left to right, seated, are I. E. Chandler, oldest son of the captain; Eleanor Jean McKenney, aged 4, and Captain J. E. Chandler. Mrs. A. E. McKenney, standing, is the daughter of I. E. Chandler and the mother of Eleanor Jean. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

Captain Chandler, 81, Celebrates Birthday

Captain J. E. Chandler, 81 years old yesterday and a member of the police department for 46 years prior to his retirement, was greeted by three neighbors whose birthday is the same as his. Four generations of the family were represented at the celebration of the captain's birthday, in his home at 25 Ormond street, S. E.

Neighbors whose birthdays are also on October 2, are Mrs. Flynn Haygood, Mrs. W. L. Lloyd and Mrs. W. P. White.

Four generations were represented—Captain Chandler, his son, I. E. Chandler; I. E. Chandler's daughter, Mrs. A. E. McKenney, and Mrs. McKenney's daughter, Eleanor Jean. Captain Chandler's birthday party was celebrated so that all his children might attend.

James L. Beavers, former chief of police, also attended.

FIREMEN, LOANERS WARNED BY BOARD

Debts Must Be Paid, But at Reasonable Interest, Firemasters Say.

Atlanta firemen will be required to meet their obligations, according to a ruling last night by the Atlanta board of firemasters.

Following a report by Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, chairman of a sub-committee to adjust accounts with loan companies, the board concurred in McCutcheon's recommendations, and also voted to insist that firemen live up to the new agreements.

McCutcheon and his committee culled about $3,000 in interest charges from the firemen's accounts.

Salary buyers also were notified that the board will insist that firemen repay only the amount which is bought with simple interest at 8 percent.

Walter Dobbs was named driver to fill a vacancy and R. M. Skipper was placed on the department's regular rolls as a full-fledged fireman.

BANKING ON Character FOR A QUARTER CENTURY

It has taken twenty-five years to learn to do the things that Morris Plan can do for you today.

These years have taught us how to avoid red tape; how to analyze your problem; and how to tailor our service to your measure.

Following in the steps of the Morris Plan have come scores of others who saw the soundness of the idea—till at last the U. S. Government adopted the essential features, in connection with the National Housing Act.

Morris Plan is many plans—one of which will fit your situation. When you can use new funds to advantage, come in and talk with one of our executives. He has helped thousands of others and his advice can be of value to you.

Text of Address by Mussolini On Italian Stand in East Africa

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The following is the English translation of Premier Mussolini's speech in Rome as announced here today by the National Broadcasting Company, which broadcast the event:

Black shirts of revolution, men and women of all Italy, Italians all over the world beyond the mountains, beyond the seas, listen. A solemn hour is about to strike in the history of the country. Twenty million Italians are at this moment gathered in the squares of all Italy. It is the greatest demonstration that human history records. Twenty million, one heart alone, one will alone, one decision.

This manifestation signifies that the tie between Italy and fascism is perfect, absolute, unalterable. Only brains softened by puerile illusions, by sheer ignorance can think differently because they do not know what exactly is the fascist Italy of 1935.

For many months the wheel of destiny and of the impulse of our calm determination moves towards the goal. In these last hours the rhythm has increased and nothing can stop it.

Italians Behind Army.

It is not only an army marching towards its goal, but it is 44,000,000 Italy marching behind the blackest of injuries is being attempted against them, that of taking from them their place in the sun. When in 1915 Italy threw in her fate with that of the Allies, how many cries of admiration, how many promises. But, after the common victory, which cost Italy 600,000 dead, 400,000 lost, 1,000,000 wounded, when peace was being discussed around the table, only the crumbs of a rich colonial booty were left for us to pick up. For 13 years we have been patient while the circle tightened around us at the hands of those who wish us to suffocate.

We have been patient with Ethiopia for 40 years. It is enough now.

Il Duce Hits League.

The League of Nations instead of recognizing the rights of Italy dares talk of sanctions, but until there is proof to the contrary I refuse to believe that the authentic people of France will join the supporting sanctions against Italy. Six hundred thousand dead whose devotion was so heroic that the enemy commander justly admired them, those fallen, would now turn in their graves. And until there is proof to the

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

A cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. You can relieve them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery that aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and to relieve the irritation and inflammation as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Medical authorities have for many years recognized the wonderful effects of Beechwood Creosote for treating coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A chemist worked out a special process of blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently course and is anxious to be an advertising artist. She is entering the Ringling School of Art, in Sarasota, Fla., for a course in art and will find this prize money most helpful in furthering her studies. Mary's grandmother, who taught her French, is also much interested in contests and puzzles of every description and it was she who interested Mary in taking part in the Book Game, and encouraged the efforts which led her straight to her goal—a prize of one thousand dollars!

The Book Game consisted of a series of 80 pictures, drawn by Herbert E. Carter, well-known newspaper and magazine illustrator. Contestants were asked to supply the most appropriate book titles represented by these pictures, which were published serially, beginning on June 23. After the last picture of the series was published on September 2, contestants were given until midnight September 14 to submit their sets of solutions. Immediately after the deadline, the checkers and judges began the task of determining the winners. Each set of answers was painstakingly checked and marked accordingly.

who is pardoned is no longer a prisoner.

No. 71. Small Boy and Others. The judges felt this title was more specific and appropriate than "On the Shore," even though the people shown were clad in bathing suits.

No. 72. Mother. This picture showed a mother presenting her daughter to a man. Some contestants suggested "Pleased to Meet You," although the picture did not show by conversation that the man was using these words.

No. 74. Fighting Stars. This picture showed statues of Napoleon and Demsey, both able warriors and stars in their respective forms of combat.

No. 76. High Courage. This picture showed a man diving from a 100-foot platform, which the judges thought, showed "High Courage" because of the distance to the water and the fortitude needed for such an attempt.

No. 80. Ancient Wisdom. This picture quoted one of Solomon's old sayings, to-wit: "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise," which obviously is "Ancient Wisdom."

Honorable Mention

Most entrants in the Book Game succeeded in solving a great number of the pictures. In several instances more than one entrant had an equal number of appropriate titles and it was necessary for the judges to take into consideration accuracy in writing the titles. Contestants were advised that titles must be given as they appeared in "What To Read," the official contest book. The greatest number of titles missed in an entry winning a prize was five, and all the titles in these sets were written exactly as they appeared in "What To Read." Additional sets missing five titles were found to contain errors made in copying titles from this book and were "noted out" of prize-winning positions by those more accurately written sets.

The judges felt that the following contestants, who came so near to winning prizes, should be given honorable mention:

Miss Thelma Gray, Atlanta; Mrs. George Hanson, Decatur, Ga.; Miss Mary Lee, Ever, Cornelia, Ga.; Miss M. Smith, Atlanta; Miss Julia Patton, Atlanta; Mrs. L. G. Ewing, Atlanta; Mrs. Edwin Harris, Covington, Ga.; Mrs. B. D. Fitzgerald, Atlanta; Miss Lucile Eason, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Bartow, Fla.; Mrs. Ellis Moore, Atlanta; Mrs. A. B. Shields, Atlanta; Mrs. W. O. Smith, Bartow, Fla., and Mrs. Bettie Rainey, Milton, N.

No. 43. Mother Hubbard. This picture showed a motherly appearing woman, the hub of a wagon wheel and the picture of a poet—or bard. Hence, Mother-Hub-Bard, or Mother Hubbard.

No. 50. When Yesterday Was Young. This picture showed a desk, calendar and memorandum pad that bore the notation, "Mr. Jones; Mr. Smith called Tuesday morning, J. D." The date on the pad was February 20, 1935, which fell on Wednesday. From this many contestants correctly deduced that the most appropriate title was "When Yesterday Was Young."

No. 54. New Voices. This picture showed a number of babies crying, giving their "new voices" a workout.

No. 57. Little Girl of Long Ago. This picture showed a little girl dressed in animal skins. The title for which it was drawn indicates her sex and size, and accounts of the time element. The alternative title submitted, "Fair Barbarian," covered only her appearance and could as well have applied to a matured woman or a handsome male.

No. 58. Man in Gray. This picture clearly showed a man in a gray suit. Some supplied "To Have and to Hold," which the judges felt was not specific.

No. 65. New Liberty or New Freedom. This picture showed a man leading a cell and smiling at a warden who said, "You're pardoned." Some contestants suggested the title "Happy Prisoner," but obviously a man of course is not a prisoner.

No. 71. Small Boy and Others. The judges felt this title was more specific and appropriate than "On the Shore," even though the people shown were clad in bathing suits.

No. 72. Mother. This picture showed a mother presenting her daughter to a man. Some contestants suggested "Pleased to Meet You," although the picture did not show by conversation that the man was using these words.

No. 74. Fighting Stars. This picture showed statues of Napoleon and Demsey, both able warriors and stars in their respective forms of combat.

DOTTED LINE HONEYMOON

By JOSEPH McCORD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Larry Cutler falls in love at first sight with Jacqueline Anthony, public stenographer at the Hotel Baynard, who longs to travel. Larry, who has traveled much, roughed it and struck gold, starts her by saying she can realize her ambition by marrying him. He presents a contract providing that he shall care for her always but that she may continue living as she is for six months and tear up the contract whenever she is dissatisfied with her husband. "Jack signs it," he gives her $10,000 in United States bonds and they are married two days later. She accedes to her husband's plan by the fact that she has lost her savings in the stock market; also that she is the daughter of Vice Anthony, inventor and rover whom after her mother's death she had supported until recently when she refused to further finance his experiments. He disappeared. Jack doesn't see Larry for two days after the wedding. Detective Staples tells her he's been asked to watch Larry just as she finds Vince, III and requiring an operation. She warns Larry by anonymous letter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Larry dropped into the official chair and produced some papers from his pocket. His face was perfectly sober, but there was a glint of amusement in his dark eyes, as he said, "Just one letter, please."

He paused as Jacqueline inserted a sheet in the machine with fingers that trembled slightly.

"This is just a personal letter . . . Larry raised his head and stared up at the ceiling, as though giving his entire concentration to the composition. "Dear Jack," he began.

A few staccato taps of the keys. "Yours of the nineteenth instant received . . . contents carefully noted. Please accept my thanks for information contained . . . I am somewhat at a loss to know how this particular data came to your attention, but I am accepting it gratefully. I was not particularly surprised to read what you had to say and will be pleased to discuss the matter more in detail when the opportunity presents itself. I hope it may be soon. Paragraph.

"With renewed assurances of my appreciation, I beg to remain yours very . . . sincerely. That's all."

Without changing his tone, Larry continued, "If I'm in an off-hand fashion where I can see you tonight. It's important. Please."

Jacqueline took the sheet from her machine and looked over the few lines as if to assure herself there were no errors. She held it out gravely, saying in a low tone: "Tonight, Baxter street entrance of the South Side hospital. Nine o'clock. Twenty-five cents."

Larry rose to his feet, chuckling silently as he reached in his pocket for the change.

"You're superb." Then he added rapidly, "Don't forget that my Montreal friends are Tomman, Kell, Limited. Thanks."

Jacqueline found herself repeating as Larry walked away without another word. Why did he say that? Oh . . . Now, she knew. If anyone were to ask her to whom he had written, she was at liberty to mention that firm. She wouldn't, though. It would be easier to say she didn't remember . . . that it was merely a business letter. Well, it was. But it was clever of Larry. This was a dreadful game she was playing . . . and fascinating. She always had been longing for adventure and now she was in the midst of one that might end . . . She shivered a little and tried to forget that.

All day long her heart had an uncomfortable tendency to climb into her throat each time a caller paused at her door. Jacqueline expected momentarily that the lieutenant would drop in to demand to whom Larry dictated that letter. But there was no sign of him.

It was a dreadful thing to admit, but the stenographer was glad that Virgie Blake was at home nursing a severe cold. The cigar stand salesman would have seen Larry in her office and hurried over to ask questions. Poor old Virgie was innocent enough, but she did have a way of making disconcerting suggestions.

"I don't believe there is the slightest cause of apprehension," was the doctor's comforting report. "You father has responded very nicely to treatment. His heart is in very good shape for a man of his age. I'm not looking for any complications. If I were you, I should go to work tomorrow as usual. You can call up the hospital in the afternoon. If anything should happen, I'll see that you hear at once. That's a promise."

"Surely."

"Absolutely. By evening, you should be able to see him. Trot along now and don't worry."

But it was not so easy to be cheerful when she found herself with things in such a dreadful muddle. In another hour she would have to face Larry, too. No telling what that was going to mean.

At 9 o'clock, Jacqueline gave her father a lingering kiss. She left the room, "Kiss" at him through her tears and cheerful little farewell. Then out through one of the side entrances to Baxter street.

Parked in the shadows was a long roadster from which Larry leaped when he heard Jacqueline's step.

"You're prompt," was his greeting. "Hop in. We'll take a little spin somewhere and talk as we go." He chuckled slightly. "And I haven't been trailed. So don't let that worry you."

Jacqueline said nothing until they were some distance from the hospital. In spite of herself, her thoughts persisted in sticking back to Vince. Larry might have guessed the reason for her preoccupation, for he asked quietly, "Visiting the sick tonight?"

"My father."

"What? You mean he's a patient? Why, I thought . . . I mean, I didn't know he was in the city."

"He has been in the hospital for a little time."

"Come home sick, then. That's tough. Nothing serious, I hope."

"He's going to be operated on tomorrow. The doctor thinks there is no danger."

"I wish I had known. Is there anything at all I can do for him? Doctors or nurses . . . ?"

"Oh, no. Larry had gotten all these things for Vince, but he didn't know it."

"Care to tell me?"

"Larry . . . he burst out miserably. "Vince has been in town all the time! He kept out of my way until . . . until he finished one of his inventions and . . . Her voice was breaking treacherously."

"I see," Larry offered easily. "He wanted to surprise you. And he was taken sick instead."

"What a tough break!"

"He had a job working nights. But I guess he used most of his pay . . ."

"I know," Larry broke in. "Instead of bothering to eat, he fed his brain child instead. Until he broke down. I know all about that sort of thing. . . . It's the way geniuses come to light."

It was very nice of Larry to speak of Vince as a genius, when he wasn't one . . . exactly. But she had to go through with it now.

"Larry . . . Vince began, "I couldn't manage about money. I had to use some of your money . . ."

"Those bonds?"

"Whatever are you talking about? Those are yours—yours to use in any way you like."

"I know . . . but I couldn't. You don't understand. I won't spend any more than I have to, and then I will put it back. If I didn't . . ."

"If you didn't, you'd think you had

BOW LEGS

ARE NOT CAUSED BY A CHILD'S WALKING TOO EARLY

Medical authorities now believe that bow legs are nearly always caused by the disease called rickets and not by walking too early. One leading child specialist says that "bow legs seldom or never come from a child's walking early of his own accord."

Of course, a child should not be forced to walk before he wishes it. Rickets is a disease due to malnutrition and it softens the bones.

ADVENTURES OF HENRY HUDSON.

IV—Look in a Bay.

Hudson and his crew made a safe voyage back to England. The captain went ashore when the vessel reached England, and the Dutch sailors returned to their home country. Hudson had found new lands, but each time he had failed to discover a water route to India. There were Several of the men had been forced to go on the trip; they had been "pressed" into service, as was the old custom for dangerous voyages.

Hudson said that there would be just as much danger in going back as in going forward. He held out the hope that they would long the way, pass around some land, and sail southward, into the warm waters of the "South sea."

"Discovery" got past Cape Chidley, and then sailed south into Ungava bay; but this bay did not offer passage to southern seas.

Northward again they went and then westward. They cut through the broad strait which now bears Hudson's name, and at last found a southward turning which seemed to offer reason to believe that they were on the highway to success.

The vessel had entered the great body of water which we know as Hudson bay. There was floating ice in the water, to be sure, but the direction was southward, and that must have meant happy thoughts for Hudson. If he could go far enough south, he believed he would reach the goal of his dreams.

Yes, they sailed southward; but they still were in far northern waters. Summer had gone, and autumn had come. More and more, ice blocked their way. On a November day the "Discovery" ran on a shoal, and 12 hours passed before it floated free again. A week later, it could not budge. Ice was all around it—the men were "frozen in," and winter was coming on.

GIRL TO WED YOUTH
WHO KILLED FATHERCoroner's Jury Declares
Miamian Shot in Self-Defense.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Azelia Zahra, pretty 17-year-old Miami girl, will attend her father's funeral Friday.

Sunday, she said today, she intends to marry the boy who killed him, John Barkett, 21.

She hopes her mother, also wounded by bullets from Barkett's pistol, will agree to the marriage.

As to her father: "Of course he's dead now, and I don't want to say anything against him. But he was a hard man."

A coroner's jury yesterday held Barkett's act in slaying the father, Manassa Zahra, 51, was justifiable homicide, inasmuch as Zahra was advancing menacingly on the younger man.

Peace Justice Thomas S. Ferguson, who swore out manslaughter warrants against Barkett, will hold preliminary hearing on them soon.

NEW TENNESSEE LAW
ENDS PACT ON TRUCKS

NASHVILLE, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Dancey Fort, commissioner of finance and taxation, announced today that reciprocal trade agreements between Tennessee and Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina and Virginia had ended.

The abrogation, Fort explained, was ordered as the result of a 1935 legislative act which requires operators of "for hire" trucks in other states to pay a fee for permission to operate in Tennessee without a license. The fee is based upon the mileage of operation in this state.

An act of 1933 had authorized the Tennessee finance and taxation commissioner to negotiate agreements only with officials in states adjoining Tennessee.

The attorney-general, however, held that the 1935 act repeals the 1933 provision. The motive of the 1935 act, the attorney-general's office explained today, was to place truck operators of all states on a parity.

ADMIRAL STANDLEY
TO BE GUEST HEREChief of Naval Operations
Will Speak at Navy Day Exercises.

Admiral W. H. Standley, United States navy, chief of naval operations, will be the guest of Atlanta on Navy Day, October 28.

Lieutenant Commander Jesse Draper, in charge of the celebration of the day in Georgia, received a letter yesterday from Admiral Standley accepting the invitation to come to Atlanta for the occasion.

Complete details of the Atlanta program for the day have not yet been worked out, Commander Draper said, but there will be an elaborate banquet at night, with Admiral Standley as the principal speaker.

The speech will be broadcast from the banquet room on a national NBO hookup. Admiral Standley, in his letter of acceptance, said he is particularly anxious to enjoy a game of golf with Bobby Jones and, if this can be arranged, it will be part of the program. The admiral is said to be quite a golfer himself, shooting consistently in the low eighties.

National Navy Day is sponsored by the Navy League of America and usually falls on October 27, the birthday of President Theodore Roosevelt. This year, October 27 is a Sunday, therefore the celebration will be held on the Monday following.

MAN, FOUND SHOT,
HELD AS BURGLARConfesses, Police Say; Two Alleged Accomplices Also Arrested Here.

Two Atlanta policemen finished a task started by a homemade burglar trap in Ball Ground, Ga., when they arrested three men yesterday.

One of the men, John Bohannon, 22, of a Pryor street address, was placed in Grady hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds.

The other two gave their names as Les Snider, 19, of a Fair street address, who was apprehended while attempting to assist Snider, and E. Grant, 28, Grant will be given a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus this noon.

Police said the machine in which the first two were found had been stolen some time ago from D. I. Finner, of 403 Parkway drive, N. E.

Bohannon told police a watchman shot him when he attempted to burglarize a Ball Ground warehouse. Ball Ground authorities told Atlanta police the manager of the warehouse had rigged a shotgun to discharge if anyone entered the inner office of the grocery company's rear entrance. The trap was discharged by burglars Tuesday night. Police quoted Bohannon as saying he had escaped from the Brushy mountain penitentiary in Tennessee.

Memphis Building Gains.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Early fall building and remodeling sent Memphis construction activities for September to 2,007,870, a gain of $88,140 over September of last year.

—J. E. Hollingsworth, city building commissioner, said today. The total gain for the first nine months of this year over the same period of 1934 was $1,300,780.

Safe Driving Pledge

In the interest of accident prevention and safer conditions on the highways and in co-operation with the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, I am making the following pledge:

1. To drive at moderate speed and on own side of road.
2. Not to pass cars on curves or hills.
3. To stop at stop signs.
4. Not to jump traffic lights.
5. In city traffic to be particularly watchful for pedestrians stepping into the line of traffic from parked cars.
6. Always to give hand signals showing my intention of turning to the left, to the right, or stopping, and not to leave the curb from a parked position without giving a signal.
7. To be fair to other drivers in all respects and to refrain from reckless driving.

wall and jump their motorcycles over various obstacles.

Though classed as stunts, Teter's acts were examples of expert, though reckless, driving. The cars he used were stock cars, like many driven on the streets of Atlanta. He is scheduled to appear again at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Ab Jenkins, holder of numerous automobile speed records, drove to victory in a two-lap tractor race, turning the mile oval at a speed of 45 miles an hour.

In the "Waterski" race, Ole Hunt crashed through the fence without injury. Charles Mitchell triumphed over Earle Howard.

Governor Bibb Graves, unable to attend and participate in "Alabama Day" ceremonies, wired his best wishes to Mike Benton, president of the fair association, and Miss Valeria Walker, of Birmingham, selected as "Miss Alabama" in the Cotton Queen contest.

With announcement yesterday of agricultural and 4-H club exhibits, interest of visitors today is expected to center on the 4-H Club demonstrations and the judging of poultry, pigeons and rabbits at 9 o'clock. Tap Bennett, superintendent of the livestock exhibits, said yesterday that Georgia farmers are thronging the livestock building to see the beef and dairy herds, here from all sections of the southeast.

County Prize Winners.

Spalding county won first prize in the county agricultural exhibit, John Harlow, county agent, arranged the exhibit. Winners of the other prizes and county exhibitors were Pike county, G. H. Martin; Clayton county, W. G. Estes, and Lamar county, T. J. Harden. All exhibitors are county agents.

Ashbury, L. I. Skinner and W. S. Brown, district agents for the Georgia State College of Agriculture, were judges.

The girls' team of the DeKalb county 4-H club won first prize in the state-wide 4-H club competition, it was announced. Misses Wynette White and Phyllis Eritchard represented the DeKalb club. Awards were made on records made during the past year and merit of the fair exhibit.

Walker and Newton counties tied for second place.

COMMITTEE ON SAFETY
NAMED BY LIONS CLUBEd Faber, of Albany, Chairman of Group To Urge Highway Caution.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The formation of a state Lions committee on safety was announced today by H. A. Stallings, district governor of Georgia Lions.

The committee is headed by Ed Faber, of Albany, as chairman, and other members include: H. R. Stone, of Dawson; A. B. Collier, of Toocoo; B. Frank Simmons, of Valdosta; Carl K. Nelson, of Dublin; Edward Murrah, of Columbus; J. B. Thresher, of Ashburn; W. C. Henson, of Cartersville; Marvin G. Pound, of Sparta; Lemuel R. Highsmith, of Savannah; and L. O. Ansler, of Decatur.

The purpose of this committee is to unite all the Lions of Georgia in a campaign for greater safety on the highways and to formulate a caution program purposed to increase safety along all lines.

This committee will hold its first meeting in Albany, the date to be announced soon.

Chairman Faber has served for three years as safety chairman for the Albany Lions Club, which has been outstanding in safety work. Each year, under the leadership of Faber, there has been a sustained campaign in Albany which has included poster contests in the schools; school boy patrols; Boy Scout patrols; general inspection of brakes; educational talks; radio broadcasts; special editions of the Albany Herald, and other safety specials.

6 WITNESSES CALLED IN JURY'S POLICE QUIZ

Sturdivant, Bridges and Others Are Expected To Appear Today.

Six witnesses, at least, will be summoned before a special grand jury committee this morning in connection with an investigation of the city police department which is expected to reveal sensational charges.

J. G. Barrow, chairman of the committee, declined to name the witnesses who will be called upon to appear at 10 o'clock this morning but it was believed that Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, Councilman A. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, and Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the council finance committee, will be among the number.

In response to an appeal issued earlier this week by Chairman Barrow, a number of Atlantans have presented the committee with evidence that certain policemen accepted money or favors for extending "protection" to bootleggers and lottery operators.

The committee chairman seemed pleased at the progress being made by his group in studying the situation within the police department which has brought it much caustic criticism from the public and city officials recently.

A number of city patrolmen also were understood to have been named by citizens as "moochers."

Incidents in which certain policemen were specifically charged with being paid off by bootleggers also were believed to have been recited to the grand juryman yesterday and Tuesday.

"I am pleased at the response people are making to our request for information," Barrow said.

Chief Sturdivant yesterday ordered shifts in assignment of nine of the patrolmen members "for the good of the service."

GAS LIGHT BONDS ARE SOLD QUICKLY

Atlanta Company Markets
$5,000,000 Issue; Annual Interest Charges Reduced

A new issue of $5,000,000 worth of general mortgage 4 1/2 per cent bonds of the Atlanta Gas Light Company was entirely sold in New York yesterday within a few minutes after the books were opened. The quick sale was regarded as evidence of confidence in the company's financial structure.

W. W. Winter, president of the company, issued a statement here in which he said that the funds realized from the sale of the bonds would be used to retire $3,967,000 due in 1944 and for a construction program which will extend service to the company to areas in the city not now being served.

"The amount the bonds sold for was not announced."

"The net effects of the transaction will enable the company to reduce its annual interest charges a substantial amount," Mr. Winter said.

"The bonds were offered on the New York market this morning and were completely sold within a few hours after the opening of the books of the syndicate. Naturally, I feel elated that we have been successful in this matter as it will enable the Atlanta Gas Light Company to continue to serve the growing city of Atlanta efficiently."

Charges "Savory Food" Enticed Husband

Mrs. B. M. McWhorter, with her son by a former marriage, B. M. McCormick, is shown yesterday as she appeared at the courthouse to file a $50,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Fannie Belle Campbell, of 962 Plum street. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

COMMON LAW WIFE CLAIMS ALIENATION

Mrs. Fannie Campbell's 'Savory Foods' Enticed Man, Plaintiff Charges.

Charging that Mrs. Fannie Belle Campbell, of 962 Plum street, alienated the affections of her common-law husband with "savory foods and other enticements," Mrs. B. H. McWhorter, of 80 Baker street, filed suit for $50,000 against Mrs. Campbell yesterday in Fulton superior court.

It was said to have been the first suit ever filed in Fulton county for the alienation of affections of a common-law husband.

Mrs. McWhorter set forth that she and her husband, B. H. McWhorter, Atlanta gangster, began living together in 1910 and were completely happy until December of 1934, when Mrs. Campbell enticed McWhorter away from her. She stated that the defendant prepared "savory foods" for the gangster and that he left her during the past summer. Mrs. McWhorter also entered suit against her husband for separate maintenance of $25 a week. Reuben Garland is her attorney in both actions. She is the mother of B. M. McCormick by a former marriage.

TWO STATES TO BACK AUGUSTA POWER PLAN

study and make a confidential report early next year to the President with the idea of getting the work under way by spring if the board recommends and if Mr. Roosevelt approves the project.

What recommendations the board will make, he said, depends upon the results of its further studies. The army engineers previously reported the project feasible if a market could be found for the power turned out.

Preston Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, which serves about 80 per cent of Georgia's population, said his company would be able to take immediately a large block of the power the project would produce, and that his company doubtless could absorb more of the power later on provided the government desired such an arrangement.

In addition, Arkwright said the Savannah River Electric Company, an affiliate, which owns about 40,000 acres in the area, about half of which would be needed if the dam is located at Clark's Hill, would be "glad to put its land in the pot, at a nominal price," if the government wanted it.

Arkwright favors the plan. Arkwright said that his company did not initiate the project, "but to the extent of our ability we are going to support it."

United States Senators George and Russell, of Georgia; Congressmen Brown, of Georgia; Taylor and Fuller, of South Carolina, and civil leaders of Savannah, Sylva, Kinston, Hiram, Washington, Warrenton and Waynesboro, Ga.; Edgefield, Abbeville, Ellenton, McCormick, Columbia, S. C., and other towns from both states joined Augustans in urging the project.

Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, wired he was unable to attend because of an attack of lumbago and Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, likewise sent regrets that he would be unable to be present.

Colonel Brown and other members of the board, Roger McWhorter, one of the builders of Muscle Shoals and now chief engineer of the Federal Lower Commission, and Sherman M. Woodward, chief planning engineer of the Tennessee Valley Authority and secretary of the National Resources Board, visited the various river and canal developments during the day and after inspecting the three suggested sites for the dam near Clark's Hill said either would be feasible.

Senators George said "We are profoundly interested in this project" and Senator Russell said "I am happy the new project entions power development as well as flood control and navigation."

Others commenting included: Arkwright, backing the project. I am confident it would be self-sustaining. Congressman Taylor: It would be a wonderful benefit to the entire area, especially to rural life.

Congressman Fulmer: One thing has been holding down the south in many years. That's discrimination in freight rates. The project would help break down this discrimination.

Mayor Allen, of Augusta; Frank Grady, manager of the Augusta Traffic Bureau; and others presented oral testimony and briefs.

Former Mayor Gordon Saussey, of Savannah, discussing various phases of the proposed "Little TVA," said one benefit would be the "influence of freight rates in 14 states."

"The city of Savannah is not only sympathetically interested, but we think it almost vital to our prosperity and to our importance as a port city," Saussey continued "Why have an inland waterway from Maine to Florida if we do not maintain navigable streams which empty into it?"

State Representative L. C. Groves, of Lincoln county, and Mayor C. K. Epling, of McCormick, S. C., in which are much of the proposed development would lie, were named to form an organization to study availability of land, and to take options in the area.

Land Official Present. William Fleming, Augusta attorney, said he was an official of the Interstate Land Company, which owned acreage above Clark's Hill and urged that it be considered.

He urged the board not to allow the Georgia Power Company to "dictate to the government." Arkwright said it was "utterly immaterial where you put the dam."

E. W. Robinson, of Columbia, S. C., of the counsel for the twin city Power Company, said his client was "heartily in favor" of the project but recommended two dams, one at Trotter Shoals and another at Price Island, instead of one at Clark's Hill. He said the company owned land at all three places.

Winnie Davis Picture Unveiled at Athens

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—(P)—An oil portrait of Winnie Davis, daughter of the president of the Confederate States of America, was unveiled today by the University of Georgia as a gift from the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mrs. T. V. Red, of Athens, president of the U. D. C., made the presentation to Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, university president.

Claude J. Henderson, young Atlanta artist, painted the portrait, which was placed in Winnie Davis memorial hall on the co-ordinate college campus.

MODERN AMERICA CLUB ELECTS FIRST OFFICERS

The Modern America Club, an organization of Atlanta students of economics and politics, held its organization meeting last night at the Ansley hotel. Officers were elected. The history of the democratic party was outlined by one of the members.

Dr. Samuel H. Kahn was elected president; Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, first vice president; Dr. Robert Temple, second vice president; D. H. Gordon, treasurer, and Mrs. E. G. Pendley, secretary.

T. J. McKinley traced the evolution of the democratic party through the institution of the bipartisan system. At the end of the speech, the history of the republican party will be the subject. The club is non-partisan, according to its officers.

HEINZ, EWING SUPPORT CONSOLIDATION DRIVE

Henry C. Heinz and Jones H. Ewing yesterday supported Mayor Key's move to consolidate overlapping departments of the city and county governments.

Heinz is vice president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, Ewing managed the recent successful campaign for ratification of city bonds.

Both expressed the belief that the mergers would be a step toward efficiency and economy in operation.

OFFICIALS PROBE DEATH OF CO-ED

Girls' Purse Found in Home
Near Scene of Fatal
Plunge.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Oct. 2.—(P)—A purse and a spot of blood added new mystery angles tonight to the death of pretty Margaret Wilm, 21-year-old Colorado College co-ed as officers questioned two men.

Sheriff Sam Deal said George Sleppy, 31, a grocer, admitted he conspired with his brother-in-law, Kenneth Garrett, the girl's escort, to corroborate a false statement after the young woman's body was found 100 feet from the Sleppy home Monday morning.

Findings of the young woman's purse in the Sleppy house apparently conflicted with a theory of Sheriff Deal that she left there Sunday night to take a bus home and accidentally fell from a retaining wall into Cheyenne creek, fracturing her skull. The purse contained the money needed for bus fare.

A spot of blood at the top of the retaining wall also puzzled officers.

TO LET YOU SEE THE QUICK-ACTING
PROPERTY OF REAL BAYER ASPIRIN

Quick Relief from Headaches, pains of rheumatism, neuritis

The old adage says, "what you see you believe." So the scientist, pictured above, shows you two actual photographs to prove the quick action of Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

Look at them, and you will see one reason why Scientists rate BAYER ASPIRIN among the fastest agents, now known or ever known, for the relief of headaches and pains of neuritis, neuralgia and rheumatism.

You'll see that a Bayer Aspirin tablet, dropped into a glass of water, starts to disintegrate, or dissolve, before it hits the bottom of the glass. Hence, is ready to go to work almost instantly you take one. For what happens in that glass happens in your stomach when you take a BAYER ASPIRIN tablet. Relief comes in few minutes.

Countless thousands know that about BAYER ASPIRIN. Know by experience that it brings the quick relief you want when in distress. Keep this in mind the next time your work or play is handicapped by a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain. And ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy. Learn for yourself how fast you can get relief.

OIL COMPANIES FIGHT ORDINANCE

Effort To Make Firms Responsible for Licenses Said Unconstitutional.

Atlanta's effort to make oil companies responsible for business licenses of gasoline stations throughout the city appeared yesterday to be headed for a court battle.

Several weeks ago city council passed an ordinance which would make the companies responsible for such licenses. Yesterday G. Everett Millican, representing the Gulf Refining Company, appeared at a meeting of the tax committee to protest. He assailed the move as unconstitutional. Millican told the committee that the oil companies lease the stations to various operators, just as property owners do in other lines of business, and that the companies are not responsible for payment of business licenses by the lessees.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, chairman of the tax committee, said the city took the action after it developed that about 65 filling stations are now being operated by war veterans and that no licenses are required for their operation. He said the 65 would pay an aggregate of $8,500 into the treasury if they paid. There are approximately 800 stations in Atlanta.

No action in the matter was taken by the committee. Failing in that, it is expected that the constitutionality of the city ordinance will be attacked in the courts.

TWO AIRMEN INJURED IN CRASH IN FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 2.—(P)—A United States coast guard flyer was seriously injured and another cut and bruised today when one of the coast guard's three land planes stationed at the Ape-Locha municipal airport, crashed at the Happy Farm dairy near Miami.

Gerald McGovern, the pilot, was taken to University hospital, Coral Gables, where he was given emergency treatment for deep cuts on the head and abdomen, possible internal injuries and possible fracture of the skull.

Robert Fendley, coast guardsman flying with him, was released after abrasions were treated.

Touring U. S. Senator Is Brief Visitor Here

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, who has been touring the United States in an automobile and trailer, stopped in Atlanta yesterday near the end of his journey.

"It is a great country, we have," he said. "I have been all over it in 30 days and I intend to write a book about my trip."

The senator was accompanied by L. M. Cadison, Washington newspaperman. Reynolds said they were making the trip on $100 each.

"On the trip we saw the President and no less than 15 governors," Senator Reynolds said.

Business Girls' League To Hold Supper and Installation Tonight

At the opening meeting of the Business Girls' League held at the Y. W. C. A. this evening, beginning with supper served at 6 o'clock, installation service for new officers will be conducted and new classes will be voted upon. Miss Sue Hill, secretary, requests reservations to be telephoned to the Y. W. C. A. by 10 o'clock this morning.

The candle-lighting ceremony will be used and the sponsor, Miss Ethel Moore, will introduce each new officer and describe her executive duties. They, in turn, make pledges and each chairman lights a candle from those held by officers. The invocation will be given by Miss Metta May Mitchell, general secretary, and the officers will be addressed by Miss Hill. "New Lamps for Old" will be sung during the ceremony, and as cabinet and club members march out, they will sing "Follow the Leader."

The Business Girls' League's officers are Miss Julia White, president; Miss Kathryn Swint, vice president; Miss Ruby Lee, treasurer; Miss Frances Rasmussen, secretary. The following are committee chairmen: William L. Loun, program; Dolores Johnson, social; Miss Mary Hill, records; Nellie Howard, telephone.

Miss Frances Austin Will Be Honored

Numerous parties are being planned for Miss Frances Austin, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Austin. Miss Ruth Gayle will be hostess at a party on October 12 at her home on Juniper street, in compliment to Miss Austin. Miss Austin will share honors at the tea to be given by Mrs. Herbert Alden on December 27 with Misses Ellen Fleming and Sarah Kennon, who are also popular members of this season's Debutante Club.

Others planning parties in compliment to Miss Austin are Mrs. John A. Boykin, Mrs. A. H. Sterne, Miss Marie Gould and Mrs. John C. Miller. The dates of these affairs to be announced later.

Miss Austin will be one of the honor guests at the luncheon to be held Saturday at the Druid Hills Golf Club by Mrs. Willard R. Leach, the other honor guest being Miss Mary Hurt, another popular debutante.

Mrs. Cannon Honors Miss Mary Raine.

Mrs. Richard Cannon entertained at a beautifully appointed luncheon yesterday at her home on Chatham street, in compliment to Miss Mary Raine, who becomes the bride of Merriweather Hill Jr., at a ceremony taking place Friday afternoon.

Talented and bronze snappers centered the luncheon table where covers were placed for Miss Raine and Mesdames W. C. Wardlaw, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Dan Conklin, Charles Taylor, James Wilcox, Robert Pegram IV, Carter Smith and the hostess.

Mrs. Power Honored.

Mrs. C. E. Brodgen entertained Mrs. Clyde W. Power, of Buford, Wednesday at a bridge-luncheon at the East Lake Country Club. The occasion was in honor of Mrs. Power's birthday.

Present were Mrs. Brodgen, Mrs. Power, Mesdames H. H. McConnell, J. D. Thompson, T. D. Thompson, Paul Jortner, L. South Jones and Jack S. Cole.

How to Have a Soft, Smooth, Exquisite Skin

For red, coarse, oily or shiny skin, and rough, spotted, wrinkled complexion, never use ordinary face powder, which will produce a beautiful soft, smooth and healthy complexion.

Cu-Crema contains absolutely no mercury, yet is guaranteed to remove "shine" and make your skin soft, smooth and lovely in an unbelievably short time. Soothing and refreshing, its presence cannot be detected, except for its charming, delicate fragrance. Cu-Crema is considered by many the most refined and exquisite of all complexion preparations, because it gives the skin an appearance of natural beauty without that "powdered" look.

Cu-Crema does not rub or dust off on clothing and is therefore excellent for use on the neck, arms and hands. It positively will not grow hair. A large jar, white, flesh or brunette, for only 50c at all drug and department stores.—(adv.)

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Look For The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, Harsh, Exhausting Salts or Weakening, Irritating, Habit-Forming Laxatives.

There is a reason why so many people are dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to burn up excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" does in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way.

Marmala Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce by dieting. Get the hard, futile or depend on harmful, health-ruining salts and laxatives for their action. Start the Marmala treatment today and millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmala today from druggists.

BLACK - DRAUGHT

Relieves One Cause of Distress After Meals

When constipation interferes with the normal working of the digestive system, warning symptoms, such as flatulence or distress after eating, may appear.

Many people, afflicted as described below, take a pinch of Black Draught after meals. Mr. C. D. McIver, of Panama City, Fla., writes:

"I suffered with gas pains. Everything I ate seemed to hurt me. I lost weight from 145 to 115 pounds. Summer led me to try Black Draught. After taking small doses while I found it better. I kept it up and began gaining weight until I was back to normal. I would not be without Black Draught."

Many others would not like to be without Black Draught after having learned from their own use of it how helpful it is in the relief of constipation troubles. Sold in 25-cent packages.—(adv.)

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

THE ARCH-KIBBITZER. The "colony" is a traditional figure at any English club. His sole occupation in life is to sit at the table and watch the younger and more active members play some card game while he comments in a manner known in today's jargon as "kibbitzing." For many years the kibbitzer has been a constant presence at the table and he has his counter-part in most American clubs.

When, in 1921, I returned to America after a childhood abroad, I played occasional bridge in a small coffee house of the continental type, in Greenwich Village, New York. It was called a club, but really was only a restaurant where customers, if they bought food and coffee, could use the tables and chairs for card games. Even the most objectionable kibbitzers were well enough versed in the art of silence to hold their peace until the end of a hand. But one kibbitzer, who was so interested in the game that he forgot he was only watching it, broke silence and created one of the finest comedies, and legal tangles I ever have seen.

Studio Club Fetes Well-Known Artists

The Studio Club of Atlanta entertained at tea Wednesday in its club rooms at 104-112 Forsyth street, in honor of the 15 painters and sculptors in the club. The group who were represented in the autumn membership exhibition of painting and sculpture which opened Wednesday, included Sidney Dickinson, N. A., of New York, who affiliated with the club during the summer which he spent in Atlanta, and the sculptor, Agnes Scott College, the High Museum and other distinguished Atlanta artists included Joseph Edwards, Edwin McKay, George Ramey, Frank Mack, Julian H. Harris, Mesdames Harold K. Bush-Brown, Howell Dodd, Stewart Gledhill, Herbert Oliver, Alan M. Abels, Misses Kate Edwards, Jane Wallis, Mary Pritchard, Kitty Buttner.

Mrs. Lee D. Davis, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Mrs. Stephen Hughes, director of the tea, were assisted in entertaining by George Ramey, director of exhibitions; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Conger, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Davis, Mrs. Katherine Conner and members of the executive board of the club.

The exhibition will be open to the public at a tea from 3 to 5 o'clock Sunday at which time the artists exhibiting will be hosts to their friends and to others who are interested.

Mrs. Scott To Fete Kappa Alpha Theta's.

Mrs. Thomas Howell Scott entertains the Atlanta Alumnae Club of Kappa Alpha Theta at her home on Habersham road on Monday at 3 o'clock in compliment to new members who have recently moved here.

Officers of the group are, Mrs. T. H. Scott, president; Mrs. Earl Cone, corresponding secretary; Miss Berneice Kaufman, treasurer, and Mrs. R. L. Sullivan, state chairman of Georgia.

Sacred Heart Group.

The Sacred Heart Alumnae met Sunday at the Sacred Heart convent. Miss Eleanor Harrison, the new president, presided and welcomed the graduates of the school into the organization as this was the first business meeting since their graduation last June.

A general outline of the club's activities for the year 1935-36 was discussed and tentative dates set for the various affairs, the first being a bridge party to be sponsored during November.

Literary Division.

The literary division of the Atlanta Woman's Club meets in the palm room of the club at 3 o'clock today. The president, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, presided and welcomed the members of the club. The program for the evening was read by Mrs. J. H. Thompson, who read some of his poetry. Music for the program will be rendered by Walter Edward McNeil, pianist, and by the Atlanta Club of the Commercial High School, under the direction of Miss Anne G. O'Callahan.

Hosts at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Jones entertained at home at dinner Saturday evening, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Marion B. Nixon, whose marriage in recent days, and also celebrating the wedding anniversary of the guests.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hames, Dr. and Mrs. Ward B. DuVal, Mr. and Mrs. Marion B. Nixon and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Jones.

St. Mark Luncheon.

Circle No. 3 of St. Mark Methodist church will sponsor a luncheon at 1 o'clock today at the church. All members and friends of the church are invited. Luncheon price is 35 cents.

HOUSEHOLD ARTS

By ALICE BROOKS.

The morning glory that closes to the sun's bright rays, will bloom in continual glory on this quilt. So easy to grow—so lovely in color and form, it has well-earned this name of Garden Treasure for itself. You can get the shaded effect of the flower by the two materials used in it. If you want to have something smart or delight that bride-to-be, make a pillow using one block set into a play mat.

In pattern 5432 you will find the block chart, an illustration for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with a yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for contrasting materials.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

ON THE RADIO WAVES TODAY

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

She chose to make these towels 14 by 24 inches when finished. The sides were finished with the smallest of hem kept in place by hand-stitching. The ends were finished in the same way. A narrow tape of the untwisted kind was attached at one corner. She might have had hemstitched a one-inch hem at the two ends, but she did not want her recipients to think she was giving them something too fine for everyday use.

After she had the towels hemmed she used the designs which she worked up. You can get those by following the directions in the "Nancy Page" column. The sheet gives working size tracing of the words "Lundi," French for Monday; "Mardi," for Tuesday; "Mercredi," for Wednesday; "Jeudi," for Thursday. The script for Friday, Saturday and Sunday will follow shortly.

These designs may be traced by using pencil carbon paper or by holding the sheet next to the pane of glass at the window and then putting the towel over and tracing the lines. The color embroidery cotton, Six Strands is not too heavy. Work the outline or fine chain stitch. Make the dot of solid French embroidery.

Popular Thomas B. Paine Is Made Honorary Member of Tallulah Circle Ellis-Carmichael Miss Hunnicutt Becomes Bride King's Daughters To Open Convention In Augusta Today Miss Dean and Dr. Wright Honored By Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougall

By Sally Forth.

TO POPULAR Thomas B. Paine goes the distinction of being the only masculine member of a feminine organization. He is an honorary member of the Girls' Circle for the Tallulah Falls school, the honor being conferred upon him by Yolande Gwin as a final gesture by the incumbent president of the group, before becoming honorary president.

Because of his keen interest and loyalty, which was manifested in every project sponsored by the circle during the past year, his selection to membership was made unanimous by the girls composing the organization, that hold Tallulah school so close to their hearts.

His interest in the work for the mountain children was especially outstanding last winter when the circle sponsored the golf match at Brookhaven Country Club between Helen Hicks, national champion; Dorothy Kirby, state champion; Charlie Yates, a national champion; and Charlie Black, a state champion. Mr. Paine, who is a member of the United States Golf Association, acted as marshal of the day, and it was through his wonderful co-operation and interest that the match was one of the most outstanding sporting events of the year, both from an attendance and a financial standpoint.

MCDONOUGH, Ga., Oct. 2.—The marriage of Miss Effie Dorothy Ellis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Ellis, of McDonough, to Benjamin Brown Carmichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Carmichael, also of McDonough, was solemnized at the home of the bride at 6:30 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Gordon L. Brooks, pastor of McDonough Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families. The vows were pledged before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, flanked on either side by white floor baskets of white dahlias. White candles in silver candelabra supplied a subdued light and dabbies in pastel tints were used in profusion throughout the other rooms.

The bride was gown in a two-piece costume of transparent velvet and silk crepe of Kent green. The over blouse of velvet was fashioned with the new high neckline and fastened with gold cloth and fastened with gold buckles. Her hat was of green felt and trimmed with a bow of green velvet and a bunch of gold. Her slipper bags and gloves were also green. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of cream-colored orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Carmichael is the oldest daughter of her parents and is the sister of Miss Sara Ellis who is studying at Bessie Tift College. She is a graduate of the McDonough High school and the McDonough College of the University of Georgia. During her high school days she represented the local school at the district meet and won a place in music. She also won recognition for her music in the Pioneer School of the Air in Macon.

Mrs. Carmichael was educated at the local school and has been associated with her father in business for several years. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wagner Walker Sr. of McDonough, formerly of Griffin, Ga.

After a motor trip through the Carolinas the young couple will return to McDonough to make their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Carmichael, parents of the bridegroom.

Miss Whitworth To Wed James F. Sinclair.

Of widespread interest are the plans for the marriage of Miss Cumi Mildred Whitworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Asbury Whitworth, and James Frank Sinclair. The ceremony takes place on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Peachtree Christian church. Dr. Robert W. Burns, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony in the presence of close relatives and close friends. There will be no attendants, and following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom will be central figures at the wedding brunch, at which Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh E. Dreunon will be hosts at their home on North Moreland avenue.

Needlework Group Meets in Decatur.

A new group of the Needlework Guild recently formed in the Decatur Woman's Club meets tomorrow at the home of Mrs. H. J. Pearson to plan for group sewing.

East Point News.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Boyle Jr., of Washington, D. C., are visiting relatives in East Point.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT EMERSON GARDNER.

The marriage of Miss Mary Cobb Hunnicutt and Robert Emerson Gardner was impressively solemnized at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lute L. Hunnicutt on Inman circle in Ansley Park. The ceremony was performed by Father Edward McGrath, pastor of Sacred Heart church, in the presence of relatives and intimate friends in the artistically decorated sun room.

Stately palms and ferns adorned the reception rooms, and the mantels were decorated with vases holding Easter lilies, alternating with seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers. An artistic arrangement of palms and ferns formed the altar, which was beautified with vases of Easter lilies and flanked with candelabra holding white tapers. The white satin pre-dinner upon which the bride and groom knelt, was adorned with flowers and an appropriate musical program was rendered by Mrs. Paul Bryan, Miss Claire Harper and Mrs. L. E. Loomie.

The maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Ruth Hunnicutt, and the bridesmaids, including another sister, Miss Eleanor Hunnicutt, and a cousin, Miss Eleanor Hunnicutt, were gown in becoming models of gold-colored velvet and carried bouquets of hardy asters, yellow roses and Talisman roses. The best man was Charles Gardner, of Columbus, brother of the groom.

Titian-Haired Bride.

The beautiful titian-haired bride was given in marriage by her father,

Lute L. Hunnicutt, with whom she entered the sun room. She wore a gown of lustrous white satin fashioned along princess lines with long sleeves and a train built in at the waistline. Her tulle veil was fastened to her wavy hair with a wreath of tiny orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white Rubrum lilies and valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, and the white and green color motif predominated in the dining room. White baskets were filled with Easter lilies and vases holding white gladioli added to the effective decorations. The included porches were decorated with garlands of lights covered with white tulle shades and festoons of smilax were draped on the side walls. The appointed punch tables held punch bowls deeply embedded in mounds of ferns and pastel-shaded flowers.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Robert Troutman, A. H. Green, W. C. Drake, Irving Gresham, James R. Ridley, B. Harvey Hill and W. R. Prescott. Mrs. Hunnicutt, mother of the bride, was gown in blue velvet and her shoulder spray was of purple orchids.

Wedding Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner departed on their wedding trip and upon their return to Atlanta they will reside at the Peachtree Terrace apartments. The bride traveled in a smart model of green wool, the coat collar in lynx fur, and her hat was of brown antique. Brown accessories completed her becoming costume.

Warneke's Brilliant Pitching Stops Tigers in Opener, 3-0

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph Hickey

TEXAS LEAGUE PARK, OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 2.—They never fail to look strange—these strange ball parks. The names on the signs are unfamiliar. New lights wink off in new places on the horizon. And for a night game, the lights seem unfriendly, garish.

It's just before the third game of the Dixie Series and the first one in the Oklahoma City park after two games in Atlanta, which our noble lads, the Crackers, divided with the Indians of this city. And it's night time and it is, as this is written, just 7:20 o'clock.

From the press box here on the roof, one looks down and watches the pageant. Indians come in—dozens of them. Real Indians in their full regalia. They are from the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache tribes.

There are beautiful Indian girls in white buckskin dresses with bands of bright-colored beads about their dark hair. The men wear gaily-colored feathers and paints.

A group chants about the drum. Even with a modern drum there is something savage in the rhythm of it, the beat of the drum, the chant.

They dance there on the green of the infield. The snake dance, the corn dance, war dance. They are very vivid against the green turf of the infield, the feathers, the colors, the flash of beads, the glitter of ornaments in the lights. The girls are graceful, so much so that the long skirts of buckskin do not hide the smoothness of their dances.

As a climax, they chase Riley Hitt, the Cracker bat boy, about the bases and trip him and scalp him. Figuratively, of course. They all laugh—but for a moment that bad boy wasn't sure with all that horde of red men running after him. He really ran.

The crowd applauds their tribal customs. And I wonder what the Indians think of our tribal custom of baseball and rooting and standing in the seventh inning?

The Indians depart and the players take the field. A yell goes up and the crowd settles back—baseball—the national game is on again.

THE WELCOME AT NOON.

Almost before we knew it, the train pulled around an oil derrick and there was Oklahoma City.

I am talking about the train which brought our brave and gallant lads, the Atlanta Crackers, westward to play the Indians of this town in the third game of the Dixie series.

You should have seen the welcome prepared for Jim Lindsey, our hero, and the big fellow who spanked the Indians Monday night at old Ponce de Leon park.

They brought out an old Ford of the year 1910. And they had it at the head of the parade right behind the two spotted ponies which were carrying a couple of gentlemen made up like Indians. There is one thing to be said for the white men who impersonate Indians, they always look much better than real Indians.

When our Jim reached the car, he found a guard of honor riding with him. There was a gentleman clad in a spotted and striped suit and a brown derby. And a lady dressed in a costume of the gay nineties. She is a beautiful woman and there were a great many of our ball players who wished they had been the guy who had spanked the Indians on Monday night. Because she was a very easy person to sit beside.

The windshield of the ancient car had a sign on it reading, "Jim Lindsey Special." He broke the hearts of the Oklahoma people, did our Jim. He won while our brave lads were battling "Red" Evans, the league's leading pitcher, right out of the box.

At that, the 1910 car kept reminding me of the Monday night game. It rattled exactly like the spines of the Oklahoma City players as they swung at Jim Lindsey's pitches last Monday night—and missed.

Well, anyhow, we all had a parade downtown and uptown and all around the town. And at least five or six thousand people lined the streets to see the parade, which included three bands.

It was quite a reception.

THE BUILDING RACE.

This town has had a story which has interested me for years. In fact, it is a much more interesting story than any of the baseball races. Because this was a building race.

And so, today when the parade was wending its peaceful way through the streets, your correspondent leaned out and took a long squint at the Ramsey tower. The Ramsey tower is a building 33 stories tall. And just across the street is the First National Bank building which also is 33 stories. But it has a tower on top which makes it a bit higher than the Ramsey Tower building. But Ramsey won his race.

It happened some four years ago. The rival millionaires planned the buildings' starts in secret and both got away at about the same time.

Bonuses were hung up for crews working on the foundations. And then the race began. Steel went up fast as the steel crews worked extra hours for extra money. It went on night and day.

The steel went up and up and finally Ramsey, a picturesque oil man, began to gain with his building. The

PURPLES PLAY MONROE AGGIES AT GRANT FIELD

G. M. A. and Commercial Meets Tonight at Decatur Field.

By Roy White.

Boys' High and G. M. A., unbeaten and battling for top position in the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association, will share the spotlight tonight in the opening of the fourth week of prep football.

The Purples, defending their 1934 G. I. A. A. championship play Monroe Aggies at 8 o'clock at Grant field, while G. M. A. plays Commercial High at the same hour on the Decatur High field. The G. M. A. game was originally planned for Ponce de Leon park, but was changed to the Decatur field when the Crackers won the Southern pennant and went into the Dixie Series.

Both games will be well worth the while as two contenders for state honors may be eliminated.

BALANCED CLUB.

Boys' High looks to have one of its best clubs in recent years, far surpassing that of last year when the city and state championships were won. It is a better balanced club and has shown far more versatility than any previous Purple team. They have scored 119 points in three games, which is considerably more than the championship team scored in five games last year and against the same opposition.

An outstanding feature has been the Purple's ability to block down field and protect the kicker and passer, with some excellent blocking. The plays have been run smooth and the forward-laterals have been a source of much pleasure for the fans to witness. The Purples are well coached with Shorty Doyle working with the line and Dwight Keith with the backfield.

Red Barron and Norris Dean are pointing the Monroe Aggies to tonight's game, and no stone has been left unturned in preparing for the game. Monroe has a much larger field than last year, and in winning 16 to 0, over Benedictine Saturday at Savannah, the Aggies showed a good team.

CADETS FAVORED.

G. M. A. will rule a favorite to beat Commercial High tonight, at Decatur. The Cadets have shown a decided improvement over recent teams and have won two impressive victories over Trion High and Marietta, after Marietta had beaten Tech High, 2 to 0. In the afternoon games, Russell plays Robert E. Lee, of Thomaston, at 8 o'clock.

Tech High and Riverside Military Academy renew an old rivalry of long standing at 8 o'clock Friday night at Grant field, as Decatur High plays Spaulding County High at 7:30 o'clock on the Decatur field.

Marietta journeys to Griffin for a night game in the other prep title of the week.

SPEED DEMONS READY FOR RACE

With speedway feuds fanned to the breaking point by the close race for the 1935 eastern championship title, 23 of the nation's fastest and most daring speed demons will face the starter Thursday afternoon at Lakewood as auto races take over the featured spot at the Southeastern Fair and Cotton States Exposition.

There will be time trial battles for the coveted pole position, beginning promptly at 1 o'clock, three heat events and a 25-mile Bill Davis Jr. trophy feature race on the program. Entered in the most formidable field ever assembled on a southern dirt track—a roll call of speedway names of Indianapolis fame, Bill Cummings, 1934 500-mile victor; Lou Moore, two-time second-place winner at Indianapolis; Billy Winn, former half-mile record holder; Chet Gardner, midwestern champion; Maynard Clark, 100-mile Lator Day victor; Ken Fowler, two-time victor here this year; Milt Marion, Billy DeVore, Vern Orenduff, Babe Stapp, Wheeler Braden, and a host of national stars.

The entry list follows: Bill Cummings, Boyle Valve Special, Indianapolis; Lou Moore, Los Angeles; Glenn Cook, Sewell Special, Birmingham; Babe Stapp, Miller, Los Angeles; Billy DeVore, Miller, Los Angeles; Sam Purvis, Riley-Cord Special, Jacksonville; Vern Orenduff, Ambler Special, Detroit; Tommy Hineschitz, Miller Special, Redwood.

Ed Redmond, General Special, Atlanta; Billy Winn, Miller, Detroit; Ken Fowler, Ambler, Patterson; Babe Stapp, Miller, Los Angeles; Maynard Clark, Gerber, Milan, Ill.; Chet Gardner, Miller, Long Beach; Doc McKenna, Greco Special, Edinburg, Pennsylvania; Chick Young, Greco, Atlanta; Milt Marion, Miller, St. Albans, L. I.; Wheeler Braden, Century Special, Washington; Pete Calk, J. Scarratt Special, Atlanta; Dick Jenkins, High Special, Marietta; Red Singleton, Seal Tower Special, Atlanta; Speedy Goff, C. Scarratt Special, Birmingham; Gordon Bracken, Riley Special, Mainbridge.

First Homer

Frank Demaree, right fielder of the Chicago Cubs, is the first player in the 1935 World Series to hit a home run. Demaree lifted his homer high into the stands in the ninth inning. The Cubs won the first game, 3-0, behind brilliant pitching by Lon Warneke, who ran his string of consecutive victories to eight straight, finishing the regular season with a run of seven in a row.

World Series Sidelights

By Paul Mickelson.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Tigers now know how the gas house gang from St. Louis got gassed. Lon Warneke, aspirin-taken, after a two-hit shutout a week ago today, he gassed the Tigers with a four-hit shutout.

Detroit had two "geese" today—Goose Goslin in left field and a goose egg on the scoreboard.

Manager Grimm says Warneke is the best fielding pitcher in baseball. He exhibited a few of his gems today, although most of his eight chances were easy. He had the Tigers topping the score by 3-0 in the first inning, but nine balls out of the infield, including their four hits. Lon's best retrieve was made in the third when he deflected Marvin Owen's hard smash, raced almost to third and got his man.

Big Hank Greenberg reached first only once—on a walk in the fourth inning—but he turned in the classic catch of the game. Starting the third, Billy Herman smacked a terrific line drive at big Hank and he hauled it down with a spectacular leap and one-handed catch. Bill Jurges and Phil Cavarretta also made pretty stops.

The Detroit crowd, which started a riot in the final game of the 1934 World Series against St. Louis, was noticeably quiet today. The Cubs, who chilled them by scoring all the runs they needed before a man was out in the first inning, had something to do with it. The only outburst of booing was heard in the eighth when they booed at National league umpire, Ernie Gunzler, after he called a balk on the Cubs. The crowd threw from Stanley Hack, American league umpire, George Moriarty, rushed over to the Cub dugout in the second and warned them not to make so much noise.

Pete Fox was the only man to hit the short field screen. He smacked one against the screen in the second inning with two out for a double, but didn't get off second.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford watched the game from the third-tier box. Philip K. Wrigley, youthful owner-president of the Cubs, together with Mrs. Wrigley and a big party of guests, sat in a box adjoining the Cub dugout.

Yes, Babe Ruth watched the big show. Dressed in a rhapsody of brown with a white carnation in his coat lapel and a big fat cigar in his face, the Babe took one look at the short left field fence and remarked that his ducky Medwick would get sick if he could see it.

Warneke said he had 14 hours' sleep last night. It would be tough on every batter if he contracted sleeping sickness.

Mike Jacobs, the ticket broker from New York who handles the duets for most of the big sports events, had a unique experience in a lobby of a downtown hotel. A couple of local brokers singled him out as a prospect for tickets which otherwise, in the vernacular of their profession, they must "eat." They offered Mike a pair of $6.00 box seats for a total of $4. That's how tough a day the scalpers had. They were scalped.

Series Figures

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The total figures, showing a total paid attendance of 47,391 and receipts of $145,432, for the first game of the World Series today, follow:
Players' share $74,170.32
Commissioner's share 21,814.80
Total for clubs and league 49,446.22
Total receipts 145,432.00
Paid attendance 47,391

GRIMM'S 'KIDS' PULL SURPRISE, PLAY LIKE VETS

Tigers Crack Early, But Cub Lads Perform Steadily.

By George Kirksey.

NAVIN FIELD, DETROIT, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Lon Warneke's long right arm, cracking fast balls down the firing range with unerring accuracy, today bridged the gap between 1907-1908 and 1935—bridged it with a magnificent pitching performance which sent the Chicago Cubs careening to a 3-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the opening game of the World Series.

This tall Arkansas boy, who hadn't yet reached the land of the living when Frank Chance's wonder teams of 1907 and 1908 won the world's championship from the Tigers, out-pitched his razorback state rival, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, before a somewhat saddened assemblage of 47,391 spectators.

FOOLS G-MEN.

With a chew of tobacco the size of a hen's egg bulging from his sunken cheeks, Warneke handcuffed Detroit's famed G-Men, yielded four scattered hits and passed through the portals of baseball's hall of fame to take his place with immortal pitchers of other years.

The Cubs' "kid team"—only three of them born when Chicago captured its only two world championships in 1907-1908—were a reincarnation of the Cubs of Frank Chance's regime. Then it was Wildfire Schulte, three-fingered Mordecai Brown, Johnny Kling, Ed Ruelbach, Joe Finker, Johnny Evers and others.

Today it was Augie Galan, Frank Demaree, Gabby Hartnett, Freddy Lindstrom and Lonnie Warneke who rolled back the years and charged the Tigers with the same savage attack which made baseball history 27 years ago.

LONNIE PICKS UP.

Where Dizzy Dean left off last September with a 11-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals the world's title, Warneke picked up today. He mowed the Tigers even more completely than did Dean in the seventh game a year ago. He drove the famed Tiger sluggers back from the plate with his smoking fast ball, he tied them up all modern with his curve and he made them nibble at a tantalizing change of pace. The Tigers curled up before Warneke as if they were fools.

One of the four hits made off him was a cheap double off the left field screen, built out onto the playing field. Another was a harmless single in the ninth, when victory was only two outs away. Only two men reached third base, both arriving there after two were out. Only nine balls were hit out of the infield. Seven times Detroit batters hit grounders back at Warneke, who gathered in the ball and completed the out.

EIGHT STRAIGHTS.

Warneke's triumph came on the heels of his brilliant 1-0 victory over Paul Dean and the Cardinals a week ago at St. Louis and was his eighth consecutive win in the Cubs' mad race toward baseball's richest reward. Today's performance atoned for Warneke's World Series beating at the hands of the Yanks in the 1932 World Series, and gave the Cubs their first World Series victory since 1929.

Five minutes after the first ball was thrown the Cubs had victory in their grasp. Then for the next hour and 46 minutes they clutched it with unyielding tenacity.

The Tigers, the veteran, experienced team, cracked in the first few minutes of play. The Cubs, the team of kids, took their first run when they got to get the jitters, played like hardened campaigners.

ROWE NERVOUS.

Schoolboy Rowe appeared tense and nervous when he strode to the mound to start the game at the Cubs. Before he recovered himself and settled down to pitch with the skill which made him the Tigers' No. 1 man, the Cubs had won the game.

Greenberg, the American league's most valuable player, never got a ball out of the infield. He rolled to Hack twice, popped to him once and walked once. In addition, he made an error, one of three misuses made by the Tigers. The Cubs played perfect ball.

With victory in the opening game, the Cubs became favorites to win the world's championship. In the 34 World Series played, the team winning the opening game has won the title 21 times.

Postal Telegraph Boys in Bike Race

Six messenger boys from the Postal Telegraph Company have entered the bicycle races Friday afternoon at Lakewood park. They will determine the city championship for the year.

The entries are: L. B. Adkins, Howell Roughton, Tom Bailey, Harry Stone, Red Luck and Bessie Abbott.

Leading the list of prizes is a racing bicycle given by Sears-Roebuck Company to the boy in first place. Second place will receive a pen and pencil set given by Schneer's Jewelry Company, and third place will receive a $5 prize from Walworth & Hood Company.

In the mile sprint race, medals will be awarded by the League of American Wheelmen, to first, second and third place winners.

In the messenger boys' race, the winning team will be presented with a silver trophy.

Registrations are being received at the Walworth & Hood store at 52 Forsyth street, S. W.

4-H Clubs To Raise Quail for State

Boy Scouts and 4-H Club members in Georgia will be given the responsibility of propagating quail from eggs "farmed out" to them under a plan of Z. D. Craver, state game and fish commissioner.

Craver said yesterday his department owns 800 quail and that 125,000 eggs will be distributed according to territorial game conditions.

"After conferring with sportsmen all over the state," he said, "we decided not to operate a quail hatchery ourselves, but to keep laying quail and farm out the eggs to 4-H Club boys and Boy Scouts on recommendation of reliable persons who will encourage protection."

The young quail, hatched by bantam hens, will be cared for under supervision of the game and fish department until they are old enough for use in restocking.

He Tamed Those Tigers

Lon Warneke, star hurler of the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, proved himself Tiger tamer Wednesday afternoon when he set the Detroit champions of the American league down with four hits and added a 3-0 victory to his list. Warneke had the Tigers hitting them into the dirt all afternoon and made eight assists himself to equal the World Series assist record. He also made a putout. This victory ran his latest string to eight straight, the Cub star having closed the regular season with a run of seven in a row. "Schoolboy" Rowe hurried for the Tigers. Associated Press photo.

'You're Gentlemen,' Is Grimm's Greeting Chicago Club Like Bunch of Kids After Taking Opener From Tigers; Rowe Downcast.

By Charles Dunkley.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—(AP)—With a roar that shook the rafters the Cubs stamped through the door of their dressing room today, almost taking it off the hinges in celebration of their first triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

In came Tex Carleton, the right-handed pitcher, leading the procession. He came Charlie Grimm, the proud, smiling manager of the Cubs; Herman, Galan, Lindstrom and all the rest, yelling, hollering and sweating.

Grimm went over to Lonnie Warneke, the pride of the Ozarks, and shook his hand warmly.

"Nice pitching," Grimm yelled. Then he turned to his players and blurted out: "You guys are all gentlemen, great big gentlemen."

"Old Charlie Root will go after those guys tomorrow. We're one up on 'em and we're going to make it two up."

"A helluva home run, Frankie," Grimm hollered at Demaree, "great third basing, Stanislaus (meaning Stan Hack), nice going everybody. You guys are all gentlemen."

Warneke did not know that he had tied the world's record for assists made by a pitcher in a World Series until he reached the clubhouse.

"If I had thrown Cochrane out in the fifth I would have broken a record, wouldn't I? But what's the difference, I was out there to win. Records don't mean nothing to me. I won one if I never win another. Boy—that's fun. When I passed those two guys in the fourth inning I just said to myself—'Calm yourself down and settle down to your work.' That's just what I did."

GABBY HILARIOUS. Gabby Hartnett, the big catcher, wearing a day's growth of whiskers and chewing gum as fast as his jaws would move, was hilariously happy.

"Both Warneke and Rowe pitched great ball. It was tough for either of them to lose."

Warneke's overhand curve was breaking beautifully, Hartnett said, causing the Tigers to hit above it or top it.

"Warneke was in trouble only that once," Hartnett said, "when he passed those two men in the fourth. Aside from that he seemed able to put the ball just where he wanted it. He had great control."

Branch Ricker, vice president of the Cardinals, came into the room, throwing his arms around Hartnett and then pulled him over into a corner where they whispered together for several minutes.

Grimm said that both clubs were riding each other and admitted that the Cubs were guilty of saying something not very nice to the Tigers when Umpire Moriarty went over to the Cub dugout early in the game to warn them against outbreaks of profanity.

COCHRANE SILENT. Mickey Cochrane, Tiger manager who hates to lose, was silent but not discouraged. He said he would start little Tommy Bridges, 150 pounds of pitching dynamite, in the second game tomorrow.

Cochrane praised both the pitching of Rowe and Warneke, regretting that Rowe was a bit slow getting started and suggesting that the Schoolboy probably would be going better in the 20th inning than the first—if there had been any 20th.

When Rowe dragged his six-foot, four-inch frame into the clubhouse, the Tigers attempted to console him by hollering "Tough luck, big boy."

"Hell," he said disgusted, "that's all I've been hearing all season."

wild in spots, permitting four free passes.

I asked Warneke before the game how he expected to handle Schoolboy Rowe. "I figure that's simple enough," he said with an Arkansas grin. "I married a school teacher and she's taught me how schoolboys ought to be handled. Don't forget that Rowe didn't do so bad himself. You can't win without runs—not often, anyhow."

Schoolboy Rowe pitched a pretty Detroit game after falling in the open well of the first inning when Augie Galan, the Cub flash and one of the best, nicked him for a double. Herman hit an infield bunt and Rowe pegged the ball past Greenberg's web-patched glove. Gabby Hartnett's single did the rest. From that point on, the tall Schoolboy from Eldorado held the Cubs to four scattered hits until Frank Demaree fired his home run in the ninth.

But the Schoolboy never had a chance against the delegate from Mt. Ida. Warneke not only softened up the Tigers' best hitters with a baffling variety of assorted art, but the Ozark Octopus gave one of the best fielding exhibitions any World Series crowd has looked upon since Nick Altrock stopped the Cubs in 1906.

TIREW PALL OVER FANS. The Tigers laid eight more hits from their chip shots dead to the box. And as the soft-shelled infield rollers came his way, Lon was on top of them after the manner of a duck sailing a fat June bug. White Fox and Rowe slipped under his guard, but he threw a heavy pall over some 50,000 Tiger fans by the way he handled the Tigers' big artillery.

Cochran, Greenberg and Goslin are no smackers. As a rule, they can hit, and hit in a pinch. But as Warneke's fast ball came sailing from behind that chunk of plug tobacco, they were handcuffed from start to finish.

It wasn't so much a matter of holding this big four hitters. They couldn't hit one hard enough to break the cuticle of a custard pie. Fuzzy infield rollers, largely to the pitcher's box—flabby infield grounders to Hack, Jurges, Galan, Cavarretta and Moriarty. He let five fly balls by or I could have caught in our teeth, with no great bother about a dentist's bill later.

That was the brand of baseball this gangling son of Mt. Ida pitched. He fanned Jo-Jo White, the first man up, and struck out no more Tiger batters. He let the Cub star jump into the infield out and the gentle pop-up.

THE TIGERS' CONSOLATION. The only solace the Tigers have in this—there got more hits from Warneke than the Cardinals got a week ago—but they got no more runs. The Arkansas fer-de-lance that poisoned such hitters as Pepper, Marv, Joe Medwick, Frank Frisch, Rippe, Collins and other members of the gas house gang merely picked up where he left off in the big pinch game of the pennant race.

Lon was not only master of ceremonies, but in addition he looked cooler than an Abyssinian sitting on top of an iceberg. Even in the fourth inning, when he passed Greenberg and Goslin with only one out, he stepped back into his stride, without any fluttering duck fat or quivering pulses, to pick up the job and carry on.

GALANS DASH UPSETS ROWE. It was Augie Galan's dash and daring in the first inning that upset Rowe and gave the Cubs the jump. The team around Warneke was still hot and smoking from its recent 21-game stretch.

Gabby Hartnett blew himself to a brace of hits, getting a healthy jump on Mickey Cochrane. But, after all, it was that buggy-whip Ozark arm that rose and fell all afternoon—the precision of a dagger thrust that wrote the story of this first game.

Lon Warneke was the whole show, including the elephants, the tight rope walkers and the pink lemonade. He had everything a great pitcher needs and he knew how to use it. His exhibition carried me to 1905 and the first day the mighty streak out the Athletics, allowing only one man to reach third. Lon's Tiger domination was just as complete. His gaunt Arkansas shadow still falls across this series, as Charlie Root and Tom Bridges step into the second show.

Petrels Embark For Friday Game

Twenty-four members of Oglethorpe's football team left the city last night for Arkansas, where the Petrels will meet the College of Ozarks Friday night. The team will arrive today in time for a workout tonight under the lights.

Coch John Nutrick, a manager and club trainer were in charge of the players.

Included on the trip are McNamara, Freeman and McGeddy, ends; Thompson, Moon, McCaughy and Evers, tackles; Picard, Adams, Walters, Neel and Horton, guards; McCullough, Piggo and Conneland, centers; Wade, Borman and Puryear, quarterbacks; Sullivan, Leslie and Carson, halfbacks, and Farmer, Manassa and Clyburn, fullbacks.

Indians Take Lead in Dixie Series by Winning Third, 8-3

NIEHOFFS SCORE FIVE IN SEVENTH TOROUT DURHAM

Brillheart Holds Atlanta in Pinches; Easterling Hitting Star.

Two of the three runs were scored after two were out.

Play Lacks Drive.
The Crackers played brilliantly in the Shaughnessy play-off, beating Nashville and New Orleans with ease. But in this series their play has been lacking in drive and dash. Eddie Moore, who left Bud Thomas in the game at Atlanta last Sunday until the score was 7 to 0 against, made no move to take Bobby Durham out tonight until the score was 8 to 2 against.

Durham, while he pitched well for six innings, was not the Durham of the Shaughnessy play-off. He had complained of a bad elbow on Tuesday but declared it was all right today.

Paul Easterling, who got three hits last Sunday, was struck out four times Monday night, got four hits tonight to help out with the Cracker defeat.

The Crackers, nevertheless, were very much in the ball game tonight, until that seventh and might have kept in there had a relief pitcher been hurried to the scene in that inning or earlier.

Had Tying Run on Third.

The ironic part of it all was that Atlanta had the tying run on third in their half of the seventh and gave every indication of being ready to break down Brillheart. Then came the double in the Atlanta half.

Bill Schmidt is scheduled to pitch for the Crackers Thursday night. Eddie Marreau, a right-hander, is to pitch for Bert Niehoff's team.

The Crackers must win Thursday night to stay in the series as a victory tomorrow would put the Indians out in front three games to one and they would need only one more to win.

The scoring on several plays was rather wild tonight and the umpiring, notably that of Pop McLarry, who was behind the plate, was very, very terrible.

Attendance was about 7,000, very disappointing.

Our nine started well. Only to fail in the pinch. Peck's Bad Boy Hamel belted a single to center as an opening salute. Johnny Hill was an out-field out, but Hamel then stole second and went to third on the catcher's wild throw. It looked good.

But Alce Hooks was called out on a wide third strike and Joe Hutchison went out swinging. No one could supply Peck Hamel with a boss.

We did the same thing, with variations in the second. Hamel struck out and Lipscomb flew out. But Buster Chatham smacked a double to right field, and went to third on a passed ball. John Palmisano singled to score and went to second on the same passed ball.

An attempted double steal saw Chatham at shortstop. The umpire, Pop McLarry, patently was wrong on the decision didn't change it.

And then those Indians went on the war path. Paul Easterling, who struck out four times in Atlanta Monday night, doubled. Young fanned, but Bilgere was safe on Hill's error at third.

Fitzpatrick singled to score him and then went out stealing. Bilgere having gone to third on the previous play, John Palmisano singled to score Bilgere. He was out trying to stretch it to second but two runs were in.

INDIANS THREATEN.

Nothing happened in the third but in the fourth the Indians threatened. They had a man on third and second before the third out was made. It wasn't at all pleasant to watch. A deluge of runs threatened.

Our lads got one in their half of

A Bulldog Backfield Threat

Al Minot, right halfback on the Georgia Bulldog eleven, is one of the most valuable Red and Black players. Minot not only carries the ball well but he is a fine blocker in addition. He was good against Mercer and this Saturday will be one of Georgia's leading threats against Chattanooga. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Londos, Mauldin Feature Mat Card

Plenty of action is anticipated tonight at the Avondale wrestling arena at 8:30 o'clock.

A challenged match between two well-known light-heavyweights will feature the program. Young Londos, who has been winning with regularity in his latest matches, has accepted the challenge of John Mauldin, for a no-time limit, three-falls match.

Honey Boy Hackney will wrestle in the one-hour semi-windup match. He will match holds with Bill Faulkner, Red Duncan and "White" Patterson will open the card with a 30-minute match.

Reserved seats can be obtained in advance by calling Dearborn 4236.

SAFETY MAN.

Not many opposing runners should get past Wally Formhart, Notre Dame back. He spent the summer in a prison road camp in West Virginia as a guard.

Atlanta Scribes Feted By Georgia's Coaches

Bulldogs' Aces Impress Writers; Big Time Had at Camp of Wade Parr.

By Jack Troy.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—Mr. Herman Jerome Stegeman, esteemed director of athletics, having designated today as "press conference day," Atlanta scribes were given the run of the town, so to speak, and later departed for home after indulging in a magnificent feast of fried fish, hush puppies and dove prepared and served under the expert direction of Wade Parr at his camp on the Oconee river.

First of all, the scribes enjoyed the splendid companionship of the Georgia coaching staff and the luxurious comfort of that new lounge in the reception quarters presided over by Mr. Harry Mehre.

Then to the field, where President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the university, came to visit and eat peanuts in such quantity as to put even such a muncher of goobers as Mr. Ed Miles to shame.

Professor W. O. Payne, faculty adviser of athletics, came down to the practice field with President Caldwell and told a story that was peculiarly appropriate to the situation.

Professor Payne told of the time that he was driving past the practice field with his young daughter. She saw the players running around and asked daddy who they were and what they were doing.

"Why, my child," responded Professor Payne, "that's the university team and they're practicing for a game."

SAME QUESTION.
The next day Professor Payne said they happened to drive by the field again and his daughter asked the same question. When he explained, she said: "But, daddy, I thought they practiced yesterday."

Well, the Georgia Bulldogs are practicing every day these days and putting in some real licks for that Chattanooga game on Saturday.

There was a long scrimmage today, with the varsity players being kept in there against the Red Devils until dusk set in.

The writers were given a close-range view of Bill Hartman's powerful plunging and open-field running and his slashing play as a back-up on defense. And Paul Causey, who has just returned to the squad after an injury, running like a frightened deer at left halfback.

SEE STARS.
Then there was an opportunity afforded to see Al Minot, running at right half back, run with the ball and catch passes; John McKnight, captain and center, intercept passes and also back up the line like a human catapult; Frank Johnson and Allen Shi, a guard and tackle, slash through to nail Red Devil runners for huge losses.

Hartman, a sophomore, admittedly has Maurice Green, junior fullback, fighting desperately to keep pace with him. One wondered what the Bulldogs might do with Hartman at left half and Maurice Green at fullback in the same backfield. That is, provided the Bulldogs had a third fullback. Causey has been hurt most of the time since the last spring practice and stubby Lew Young is just recovering from a long illness. Then, too, Alf Anderson is out for three weeks at least with a broken right hand.

Ward Holland, third-string fullback, is out for a month with lacerated leg.

BOND IN FORM.
Co-Captain John Bond, regular left halfback, is in great shape and having one of his best years.

After watching the work of the first string line, including Henry Wagon and Charlie Harold at ends, Shi and Harry Harman at tackles, Johnson and Moorehead at guards and McKnight at center, one got up and walked away with a feeling of having absorbed some power somehow. And the offensive and defensive play of Hartman, Minot, Causey and Andy Rodenberry, a likely-looking sophomore, somehow added a spring to one's step.

Mayor Lon Dudley sat with the scribes and felt very expensive about it all, too.

FISH-EATERS.
Then one and all repaired to the river camp of Wade Parr, fisher and hunter par excellence. And a never-empty plate of crispy fried fish,

PAUL CAUSEY AND HARTMAN PLEASE MEHRE

Bulldogs Look Good in Long Offensive Scrimmage.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Coach Mehre placed a secondary composed of Rodenberry, Causey, Minot and Hartman behind his varsity line today and the combination turned in a fair account of itself against the "Red Devils" in a stiff scrimmage.

Eyes were focused on Causey and Hartman, and each looked good. Bill Hartman scored two touchdowns, both of which came on long runs. Paul Causey tallied one after breaking away on a 50-yard sprint. Causey also made several good gains. Hartman supplemented his value by good blocking.

The final scrimmage of the week before the Bulldogs were into Scrappy Moore's University of Chattanooga Moccasins, is slated for Thursday. Mehre has been trying to get his second-string team organized this week by running Causey into form.

Al Minot caught a pass from Causey for one of the two touchdowns he scored. The other he pushed over through center from the 3-yard line. Neither John Bond nor Alex Ashford were at practice today. Both have slight injuries. Both will probably be back Thursday. Ashford has a Charley horse but will be ready to play Saturday.

A few substitutions were made in the line before the scrimmage ended. Backs were sent through a pass and pass defense drill. A punting drill was held as the boys prepared for the scrimmage. The encounter Saturday in Chattanooga will be the third between the schools in history. Georgia holds one triumph and a tie in the series which began in 1912 when Georgia won by a 33-0 score. Chattanooga tied the Georgia team in 1915 by a 6-6 score.

25-1 Shot Rallies To Capture Race

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Running as his 25-to-1 odds indicated during the early stages of the race, Alfy Wynne Vanderbilt's Good Harvest, carrying the feather package of 107 pounds, staged a thrilling finish today to whip a highly regarded field of 3-year-olds in the sixty-sixth running of the Jerome Handicap at Belmont Park.

The gelded son of Epinard, out of the money in all his races since scoring in the school in history, Georgia holds one triumph and a tie in the series which began in 1912 when Georgia won by a 33-0 score. Chattanooga tied the Georgia team in 1915 by a 6-6 score.

Pegler's Suggestions Would Enliven Series

Insists Customers Do Not Get All Coming to Them; Wants Dugouts Wired for Sound.

By Westbrook Pegler.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—At the moment of writing, some 50,000 citizens are spreading over the Detroit ball yard, scattering a litter of twisted score cards and torn newspapers as they go.

Up here in the press coop, seven stories above the ground, the only press coop in the country so high as to require elevator service, the ink-stained wretches of the fourth estate are tickling typewriters in a long horseshoe stretching from tip to tip of the grandstand roof. They do not look unhappy for wretches, but their 1 would say, is the toughest job of all. Their problem is to hit upon some startling way of reporting that the Chicago ball club, the Cubs, licked the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 0, in the opening game of the World Series of 1935.

Now that is something to do, for, after all, this was no overpowering ball game.

NO BROKEN BONES.
No legs or skulls or records were broken, although one obscure record which has been aging in the archives since 1906 was tied, and the ball game was one of those smooth, expert demonstrations the like of which is seen hundreds of times every season in the eight major league cities and some of the minor points.

Lon Warneke, tall and lean like Dizzy Dean, with a loose right arm of the type known to the grade as a buggy whip, held the Tigers to two hits, two of which were border-line jobs that might have been putouts under other circumstances. But the last time out, in a league game against the Cardinals a few days ago, he gave only two hits and shut them out. He was so good today his command so firm most of the time, that he had the Tigers flipping up little chip shots, like golfers approaching a green, and executed eight assists and a single-handed putout himself.

In fact there were 22 infield putouts by the Cubs, a statistic which will convey a rough idea of the sort of pitching which Warneke discoursed between the beginning and the end. It might interest you to frequent a World Series press coop while the patrons are gnawing peanuts and lukewarm frankfurters daubed with sour paste and observe how word spreads up and down the double rows when it begins to look as though some one would approach or break an old record.

FUSS OVER NOTHING.
For 17 years I have been going to World Series ball games in the fall and it is my conviction now that the fall of us upstairs make the mistake of trying to compose pieces about the games as big, dramatic and important as we have hypnotized ourselves and the public into believing the ball games are. The truth is that the games themselves rarely have justified their billing, considered strictly as demonstrations of baseball, and that the players and writers, both, often choke up in the presence of this imaginary tremendousness and do themselves less than full justice by overwriting.

Certainly the athletes, particularly the young ones who have been reading the thumb and mitt he has spun a woven web of cord. In the first inning, Greenberg lost net, ball and all in a close play on Bill Herman.

I do not mean to low-rate the ball game. It was a neat and tidy little show, the practical details of which went out on the instant and speak for themselves. But when you read the skyrockets and pinwheels and bombs bursting in air, bear in mind that tradition is a hard driver. And tradition has been walking up and down the long horseshoe on the roof for more than an hour since the players left the field, cracking the lash over the backs of the tolling literati and showing "Built it up!" "Get hot! Get excited! Get hysterical! Those were not mere mortal ball players down there. They were super-men, heroes, gods. This is the World Series."

CAN'T HEAR 'EM.
This sometimes happens to Greenberg. But what the Cubs were saying to him and what Moriarty said to them and what they hollered back as they came up snarling to the top stop, their jaws working, cupping their hands so that the sound wouldn't carry back to the customers sitting behind them, may only be guessed.

The intimacy of the ringside doesn't exist in the World Series. The dugouts should be wired for sound because the chatter and repartee which often becomes extremely personal and vulgar is a legitimate part of the entertainment. It often leads to incidents on the field which the customers see but only half appreciate or do not understand at all and the customers are no better placed than the working press.

This Greenberg wears a mitt which is more like a lacrosse racket or a butterfly net than a baseball mitt but nobody would notice that and I wouldn't have looked to see if Walter Hagen, the old golfer, hadn't worked out with the Tigers the day before and caught a liner with it which he didn't know he had until he looked in the glove and saw it there. It is well over a foot in length and between the thumb and the mitt he has spun a woven web of cord. In the first inning, Greenberg lost net, ball and all in a close play on Bill Herman.

I do not mean to low-rate the ball game. It was a neat and tidy little show, the practical details of which went out on the instant and speak for themselves. But when you read the skyrockets and pinwheels and bombs bursting in air, bear in mind that tradition is a hard driver. And tradition has been walking up and down the long horseshoe on the roof for more than an hour since the players left the field, cracking the lash over the backs of the tolling literati and showing "Built it up!" "Get hot! Get excited! Get hysterical! Those were not mere mortal ball players down there. They were super-men, heroes, gods. This is the World Series."

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Renewed threats of war in Europe brought widespread losses on the bond market today.

Net declines of 3 to 7 points were registered by Italian issues; active domestic corporate loans ended mostly at the low of the day, 1 to 4 points below Tuesday's finals, and United States government bonds ranged from 1-to 1-1/2 points lower.

Transfers of $15,444,000, par value, were made in the New York market today, and of this amount the turnover in government bonds accounted for $3,400,000.

Liquidation by both small and large traders in preparation for whatever may happen in Europe, was the only factor outstanding in the day's movement. That there also was some foreign selling was indicated by the sharp decline in number of issues that in the past have been trading favorites of Europeans who interest themselves in American markets.

Well-informed observers, however, have doubted that there was any institutional selling of consequence, except possibly in the rail division, where financial troubles have become acute in a number of cases in the past few days.

Closing prices of active corporate issues, most of which were under the lows of the day, included Great

THE CONSTITUTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Information
Want Ads accepted up to 9 p. m. for publication the next day. The closing hour for the Sunday edition is 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED RATES
Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:
One line, 10 cents
Three times, 25 cents
Seven times, 45 cents
Maximum, 2 lines (12 words).

In estimating the space to an ad for a single insertion, the advertiser will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made for the rate. Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. All want ads are subject to proper classification and the Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement.
Ads accepted by telephone are accepted from advertisers listed in the telephone or city directory on memorandum charge only. In return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.
